U. S. Navy Planes Hit Missile Site Near North Vietnamese Port

Nike Hercules Superior to Russian SAM

Army Examines U. S. Missiles After Red Use in War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has taken another look at its Nike Hercules air defense missiles in the light of the poor performance of Russian-built SAM antiaircraft missiles in North Viet Nam.

Its conclusion: The U.S. missiles do not have the same weaknesses and no major adjustments are needed in Nike Hercules defenses.

Sources said today Army air defense commanders were asked to re-examine their doctrine and capabilities months ago after the Russian-built SAMs appeared in North Viet Nam.

Details of the study are secret, but it was understood that the Nike Hercules radar — vital to the killing ability of the missile — was rated superior to the Soviet SAM radar equipment and less subject to invasion.

The re-examination took account of special tactics developed by U.S. Air Force, Navy and Marine fliers in dealing with the SAMs in their forays into North Viet Nam.

"We think our batteries would score much higher kills than the North Vietnamese," said one source.

The SAMs, believed to be manned by North Vietnamese crews, have knocked down fewer than 20 of the 235 U.S. warplanes lost above the 17th parallel.

Some U.S. military men believe the SAMs would do better if they were handled by Russian firing crews. Russians have been serving as advisers and trainers, according to information available here.

Among other things, the U.S. Army missile men were told to see what could be learned from the mobility of the Communist weapons.

South Africans Protest Curbs on Student Official

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Angry University students today planned country-wide demonstrations protesting drastic restrictions put on the president of the student organization sponsoring Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's visit next month.

Watched by security police, gowned students at Johannesburg's Witwatersrand University stopped cars passing the university and handed out pamphlets saying, "We will not give up our responsibilities in the face of intimidation."

Condemnation of the government's action poured in from students' representatives in Johannesburg, Cape Town, Durban and Grahamstown. But a student organization which supports the government and its racial policies, the Afrikaanse Student Bond, expressed its approval.

The white supremacist government Wednesday prohibited Ian Robertson, president of the multiracial National Union of South African Students (NUSAS), from taking part in any NUSAS activities.

WCTU Blues: Mrs. Tooze Dumps Booze

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — One hundred dollars worth of beer and whisky went down the drain Wednesday as Mrs. Fred J. Tooze, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, helped an Evanston detective celebrate his birthday.

Fourteen bottles of whisky and 217 cans of beer seized by Evanston police during raids from April 21 to May 10 were poured down the drain of a shower stall in the locker room of the Evanston police station.

Evanston is dry and the law requires that liquor seized by police be disposed of.

It was detective Zeltee Edwards' birthday. Picking up the first can of beer, patrolman Donald C. Mountain, property officer for the Evanston Police Department, handed it to Edwards saying: "Here's a beer for your birthday."

Edwards opened the can, muttered, "What a waste," and poured the beer down the drain. Mrs. Tooze, who had been invited to attend the ceremony as a public witness, sang: "Happy Birthday to You."

Life in Cuba Terrible, American Woman Says

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The first American of Anglo-Saxon descent to be repatriated from Cuba by refugee airlift, Doris Roper Martin, says, "I feel like a refugee."

She arrived with her Cuban-born family and said she wanted to "start over again." She had not seen her country in 17 years.

"I didn't know whether to laugh or cry when the plane landed," said Mrs. Martin, one of the last 600 U.S. citizens who remained in Cuba. "So I did some of both. Then I thanked God for being here."

Children Weep Her three children, U.S. citizens but unable to speak much English, wept as they touched American soil.

"Life in Cuba is terrible," Mrs. Martin said. "Margarita went to a Catholic school and since that closed three years ago because they sent the nuns out of the country, she hasn't attended school. I took Andres out of school last year because they were trying to make a Communist out of him."

Margarita is 18, Andres 15, Antonio 11.

"The children could have no milk at all," Mrs. Martin said. "Only infants get milk in Cuba."

She added: "Our entire family got one and one-fourth pounds of meat a week. We got three ounces of coffee a week per person. A pair of shoes had to last two years."

Speaking half Spanish, half English, Mrs. Martin continued: "We are going to start all over again in the United States. All our belongings were confiscated by Castro."

Her husband, Dr. Andres Martin, arrived Wednesday, a day after she and the children did. He had been held back since he is a physician, and exodus of doctors from Cuba is restricted.

Political Leaders May not always see eye to eye, but they manage to get nose to nose. # Oleo Ban Repeal Gets Preliminary Approval

Final Test Of Measure Next Week

MADISON (AP) — A bill repealing the nation's last state ban on colored oleomargarine has won preliminary approval in the Wisconsin Assembly but must wait until next week for its final test.

A 57-41 vote Wednesday put beyond the amendable stage a much-discussed proposal that would permit the sale of colored oleo but tax it seven cents a pound. The two-thirds vote needed to move the measure to immediate passage was not in the House.

The preliminary ballot came after more than a week of interspersed but prolonged debate during which more than 20 amendments were considered.

Promised Changes A dozen proposed changes kept the Assembly busy two and a half hours Wednesday.

At one point, Assemblyman Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, sponsored the original bill, pleaded with supporters to refrain from answering long-winded critics.

"We are facing here today a delaying tactic that will prevent the bill from ever leaving this house," he said.

On an 85-12 vote, the Assembly adopted an amendment earmarking half of the revenue collected from the tax for a dairy plant security fund and half for dairy industry promotion and research.

The security fund would guarantee payment to farmers for milk delivered to dairy plants that fail.

Other Amendments Only two other amendments were adopted. One would allow the manufacture of oleo with any American-produced vegetable oil. The other would require the State Department of Agriculture to establish grading standards for oleomargarine similar to those used for butter.

The Assembly later approved by voice vote a bill requiring

Peking Mayor Latest Topic of Guessing Game

TOKYO (AP) — The absence of Peking Mayor Peng Chen, one of Red China's most powerful men, from ceremonies honoring visiting Albanian and Romanian delegations added to speculation today that he may be in disgrace.

Peng, 67, ranks No. 6 in the Communist party hierarchy and is a member of its ruling politburo. He was absent from banquets given for each visiting delegation and did not go to Peking airport Wednesday to see the Albanians off or to greet the Romanians.

Tokyo students of Chinese affairs acknowledge that in the light of Communist Chairman Mao Tse-tung's comings and goings the "who's missing and why?" guessing game is somewhat hazardous. But diplomats, newsmen and scholars are wondering whether Peng has been caught up in the current party purge.

Would be Scholar-Teacher

Bishop Pike Wants to Quit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Rt. Rev. James A. Pike, Protestant Episcopal bishop of the Diocese of California and a storm center of religious controversy, is considering a contemplative life and the role of scholar-teacher. He wants to resign as head of the diocese.

Bishop Pike, 53, also would like to become a worker-bishop, a man who is a bishop but who earns his income outside the church.

Pike, in a statement Wednesday, said if the church's House of Bishops approves his resignation proposal, he will become a member of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions at Santa Barbara, Calif.

Administrative Pressure "The freedom from administrative pressure and the tremendous cares of the diocesan responsibility would give me that leisure and opportunity to serve, both as scholar and teacher, in the deepest exploration of those matters and issues which so profoundly affect this generation and generations to come," he said.

He said the church is torn by conflict between the "in group club" feeling and the concept of Christianity as a cause. He said this has led to the church's decline and he wants to explore the conflict's roots "with the aim of presenting the faith in a way which is more relevant to contemporary man."

Pike, born in Oklahoma City, grew up in Hollywood. For him, the road to the priesthood included being a naval officer, a Roman Catholic student, an agnostic and an attorney. He was ordained an Episcopal priest in 1946.

He was head of Columbia University's department of religion from 1949 to 1952 and later was dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York. Pike was elected bishop of the California diocese in 1958. It comprises 10 counties in west-central California.

Pike has been accused of heresy because of his questioning of such doctrines as the virgin birth and the Trinity. During a San Jose appearance Wednesday, he said he did not believe in the second coming of Christ. "I do not believe it at all,"

Temperatures Moderating In Northeast

Illinois Soaked; Storms Sweep Across Kansas, Missouri

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Temperatures moderated in most of the northeast quarter of the nation today after several days of freezing weather which appears to have caused millions of dollars damage to fruit and vegetable crops.

Lowest readings were in the 20s in northern New England but the mercury was mostly in the 30s and 40s in areas hit by the recent spell of unseasonably cold weather.

More rain fell across wide areas from the central Rockies into the nation's midsection. Snow fell in mountain areas. The rain belt appeared heading eastward and southward.

Kansas, Missouri Stormy weather raked areas in eastern Kansas and northwestern Missouri Wednesday, injuring one person and causing property damage. A tornado struck at Pittsburg, a city of 18,700 in southeastern Kansas, and blew the roof off part of a building in which several hundred persons sought shelter. Several homes were damaged.

Illinois Rains Drenching rains hit northeastern Illinois, including Chicago and suburban areas. More than three inches doused Chicago since Wednesday morning compared to the normal monthly total of 3.75 inches for May. Light snow fell in some areas.

Gore Hopes Lodge Supports Elections

Wants Ambassador to Return With Administration Instructions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Albert Gore said today he hopes Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge will return to Saigon with explicit White House instructions to support free elections in South Viet Nam.

The Tennessee Democrat gets a chance to express that hope to Lodge when the American diplomat testifies at a midafternoon closed session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Lodge, back from the war zone for consultations, conferred Tuesday night with President Johnson and the National Security Council. Secrecy has shrouded the substance of Lodge's discussions.

Another Item Another item before the committee today: A proposal to give it a share in supervision of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., is pressing that bid, seeking seats for three foreign relations committeemen on the Senate panel which oversees the secret intelligence agency.

It is now composed of senators from the armed services and appropriations committee. Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the CIA panel, opposes the McCarthy plan.

Gore and Sen. J. W. Fulbright, Arkansas Democrat who heads the Foreign Relations Committee, have expressed concern at newspaper accounts from Saigon which they said indicated Lodge is not enthusiastic at the prospect of Vietnamese elections.

Administration Support Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has declared the administration supports elections in the south, and pledged that American forces there will not interfere with balloting — by Communists if they choose to vote.

Rockford Murder Trial Rescheduled in Sycamore Circuit Court

SYCAMORE, Ill. (AP) — After two changes in location, the trial of Russell Charles Dewey, 25, on a charge of murdering an 11-year-old Rockford girl, has been set for Sept. 19 in Circuit Court in Sycamore.

Judge Cassius Poust, who set the date, announced he would hold a hearing May 31 to determine whether Dewey is competent to stand trial on a charge of killing Susan Brady in Rockford Dec. 20.

At the request of Dewey's lawyer the trial was switched from Rockford to Freeport and then to Sycamore. The lawyer contended public opinion had been so enflamed by publicity that it would be impossible to find an impartial jury.

Lunar Probe Vehicle Surveyor Makes First Soft Landing in Test

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — "This is very significant and we're all delighted," he said. "We have this day tripled our confidence."

Hughes is prime contractor for Surveyor.

Steffen said the May 30 launch at Cape Kennedy, Fla., aboard an Atlas-Centaur vehicle would have been delayed if Wednesday's test had failed.

The engines of the 225-pound Surveyor vehicle slowed the descent from a velocity of 55 feet per second to 5 feet per second, or about 3.5 miles per hour, at impact. The lunar landing version will weigh more than 2,000 pounds but will be operating in the much weaker gravity of the moon.

namese report 3,334 killed for the year.

Viet Cong losses were reported as 456 killed — the same figure as the previous week's — and 121 captured, an increase of 23.

As the war continued today, U. S. Marines and airborne troops battled the Viet Cong in three operations while American planes continued to pound targets in North Viet Nam.

A U. S. spokesman reported Navy planes came two miles closer to Haiphong, North Viet Nam's major port, to hit a Soviet-built missile site Wednesday. The site was 10 miles from the port city, and the spokesman said smoke billowed 2,000 feet into the air after the attack.

Previous Attack

The closest previous attack to Haiphong was 12 miles.

Three missiles were fired from the site before American bombs struck it. None of the planes was hit. But near the North Vietnamese town of Dong Hoi an F105 Thunderchief was shot down by antiaircraft fire, and its pilot was reported missing. It was the 236th U. S. plane lost in raids on North Viet Nam.

Ground action picked up sharply, and elements of two U. S. Marine divisions and of the 101st Airborne Brigade were thrown into battle.

Troopers Attack

About 90 miles northeast of Saigon, in a thick, tropical jungle, the paratroopers attacked an estimated 200 to 250 men. An American military spokesman said they were Viet Cong. Vietnamese sources said it was the crack 141st North Vietnamese regiment which had recently moved into the area.

Monsoon rains pelted the jungle.

The Marines launched two new operations in the northern part of South Viet Nam, supported by massive artillery and air barrages.

Sixty helicopters airlifted a large Marine force 18 miles west of the coastal city of Quang Ngai as Marine pilots plastered the area before the landing. Supported by Vietnamese army units, the advancing Marines blew up an intricate Viet Cong tunnel network.

Operation Wayne

Near the old imperial capital of Hue, units of the 3rd Marine Division were in their third day of Operation Wayne and reported five Viet Cong killed.

In addition to the Haiphong missile site, American targets in North Viet Nam included highways, bridges, railroad tracks and storage depots.

The road through the Mu Gia pass, a gateway to the Ho Chi Minh trail, was reported cut in three places. U. S. pilots have repeatedly reported blocking the pass, but the Communists have always reopened it quickly.

South Vietnamese frogmen combed the wreckage of the Viet Cong supply ship sunk off the Ca Mau peninsula Tuesday night reported finding seven tons of ammunition, grenades and mortar shells, as well as several heavy machine guns. Some 30 tons of ammunition was believed to have exploded when U. S. ships and planes blew the coastal freighter apart.

The introduction of two more amendments to the controversial accelerated highway construction bill increased the possibilities of extended and spirited debate on that subject.

Roosevelt Announces Candidacy

NEW YORK (AP) — Franklin D. Roosevelt, son of the 32nd president, today declared himself a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of New York.

In a prepared statement for a news conference at his campaign headquarters, Roosevelt said, "I am entering the race for governor because I love politics and a good political fight and above all I love New York and its people."

Roosevelt's entry into the race had been rumored for several months. He will be making his second bid for the nomination for governor, an office held for two two-year terms by his father before he was elected president in 1932.

Roosevelt, 51, resigned in Washington Wednesday as chairman of the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission after weeks of speculation that he would make the move. He had been chairman since July 2, 1965, when the commission went into operation.

Two other men already are declared candidates for the nomination to oppose Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who is seeking a third term. They are Eugene H. Nickerson, Nassau County executive, and Howard Samuels, an upstate industrialist.

Frank D. O'Connor, president of the New York City Council, is expected to be the fourth candidate.

School Aids Deficit Will be Met, Legislature Assured

MADISON (AP) — The Legislature will have the funds needed to meet a major school aids deficit and still leave Wisconsin a $28 million surplus on June 30, will not be released until next 1967, a research analyst told a legislative committee Wednesday.

A deficit of $8.3 million is anticipated in the school aid appropriation.

Dale Cattanch, supervisor of budget analysts for the Ford Foundation Committee, a research agency working with the Legislature, gave the figures to the Joint Finance Committee.

Cattanch said an upswing in tax receipts will put $35.6 million more than expected into the state treasury this biennium.

Earlier in the session, Democratic legislators had predicted a projected surplus ranging from $40 million to $73 million.

Milwaukee Diocese Vows Slum Fight

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Milwaukee has pledged $50,000 to an inter-faith campaign against prejudice and slums. Archbishop William E. Cousins said Wednesday.

The pledge, to cover two years, is designed to help start a 10-year program sponsored by the Greater Milwaukee Conference on Religion and Race.

The archbishop asked that other religious groups raise a similar amount in the next year.

The pledge was announced at a conference meeting after priests, ministers and rabbis had toured Milwaukee's slums on the predominantly Negro north side.

Griffin Named to McNamara Seat In U. S. Senate

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Political pluses are stacking up for Robert P. Griffin, the Republican congressman who started as the underdog — and probably still is — in the Michigan race for U. S. Senate.

Griffin picked up his newest advantage Wednesday when Gov. George Romney named him to the Senate seat vacated by the April 30 death of Democrat Patrick McNamara.

Griffin will thus have six months between now and the Nov. 8 election to build a record as an incumbent and try to establish "keep Griffin" voter psychology.

He is heavily favored in the Aug. 2 primary. However, the hopes of winning a position of contest is likely to be overshadowed by the Democratic nomination fight between former Gov. G. Mennen Williams and Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh.

Sun's Spinning Rate Gets Slower

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The sun will one day spin only half as fast as it is now — in about two to four billion years.

The estimate, made at the California Institute of Technology and based on measurements taken by space satellites, indicates the sun's rotation will slow from once every 27 days to once in 40 days.

The effects of the slower solar rotation were not calculated.

Road Accidents Claim Lives of 2 More in State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Single car accidents in Racine and Barron Counties have raised Wisconsin's 1966 highway death toll to 283.

The toll a year ago stood at 285.

Mrs. Oleta Godske, 71, of Racine was killed Wednesday when she fell from her husband's car after it went out of control on Highway 11 near Sturtevant.

The Sheriff's Office said Mrs. Godske apparently fell against the inside door handle as her husband struggled to bring the car back under control.

The car went off the roadway and did not turn over. However, it crushed Mrs. Godske beneath its rocker panel.

In Barron County, Garland Bruder, 68, of Prairie Farm was killed Wednesday afternoon when his car overturned on County Trunk P, authorities said.

In an accident Wednesday in Atlanta, Tex., Mrs. Minnie Small, 54, of Milwaukee, was killed along with her nephew, a soldier on leave from Korea.

Originally, Rusk had indicated the initial step, the constitutional balloting, would come in August. Now it is expected in September.

Iraqi Rebels Resume Battle

Kurdish Tribesmen in Indirect Negotiations With New President

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Large-scale battles—with tanks, artillery and air attacks—have erupted again in northern Iraq between government forces and rebel Kurdish tribes, reports reaching Beirut said today.

At the same time, Kurdish sources reported, indirect negotiations are under way between the rebel tribesmen and Iraq's new president, Maj. Gen. Abdel Rahman Aref, to end the five-year-old war in the north.

There was no official confirmation from Iraq. The Baghdad regime is reluctant to publicize the Kurdish problem.

Kurdish sources in contact with northern Iraq claimed that two Iraqi divisions, supported by armor, artillery and Soviet-supplied Iraqi air force planes, launched an assault against the Kurds about 10 days ago in the mountainous Ruwanduz region near the border of Iran.

Attacks Stopped

The Kurdish rebel radio station claimed the attacks had been repulsed and there were hundreds of dead and wounded. An all-out assault by Iraq's five army divisions had been reported planned for April 15 but was reportedly suspended by the death of President Abdel Salam Aref on April 13 in a helicopter crash.

Kurdish sources speculated that the government went ahead with the military campaign in the hopes of winning a position of strength from which to negotiate.

The Kurdish leader, Mullah Gov. G. Mennen Williams and Mustafa Barzani, is demanding self-rule for the two-million Kurds in northern Iraq.

But, having done this much, there is no indication he intends doing much more in this field himself. He has let others state most of the case for him, like the secretaries of state and defense.

But when Dean Rusk and Robert S. McNamara go before the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee, their statements get scrambled in arguments between them and the senators. Criticized Fulbright
What Johnson did Wednesday was to take a sort of sideswipe at Sen. J. W. Fulbright, the critical chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, without once naming him.

In answer to Fulbright, who had thrown words like "arrogance of power" at Johnson, the President simply said, "The exercise of power in this century has meant for the United States not arrogance but agony." Johnson doesn't seem inclined to go beyond that kind of answer, limited as it was.

He may believe Fulbright and those who agree with him are only a small percentage of the population and therefore don't need any stronger answers than that applies particularly to the Buddhists who reportedly plunged into strategy conferences when they heard that South Viet Nam's Premier Nguyen Cao Ky said he expects to remain boss for another year.

Any real explosion among the Vietnamese over Ky and a new government could make hash of all the American efforts to fight a war against a Communist enemy in the north.

So spring is not the only thing that's got people guessing.

About 200 Representatives of local units arrived in Appleton Wednesday for the Wisconsin Council of Catholic Women convention. All programs are scheduled at the Catholic Club. Above, arriving for the three-day meeting are Mrs. Mose Belleau, Ke-waunee, Mrs. Richard Herman, Manitowoc, and Mrs. Harold Mattheng, Tomah, who received programs from Mrs. Walter Woods, Appleton, and Mrs. Raymond Heckman, Merrill. (Post-Crescent Photos)

In the midst of serious meetings, the Wisconsin Council of Catholic Women scheduled an evening of pure enjoyment. The group held its convention banquet at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Catholic Club, where all programs have been arranged. A program was presented by Miss Sulie Harand, Chicago, who gave a musical review of "Funny Girl." Talking before the dinner, below, are Mrs. Clayton Mills, Endeavor; Mrs. William O'Donnell, Madison; the Most Rev. Bishop John B. Grellinger, Bear Creek; Mrs. Orin Boeyink, Mosinee, who introduced the entertainer; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward Kinney, Madison, and Mrs. Stanley Staidl, Appleton.

Prisoners Not Predestined to Life Of Crime, Correction Director Says

"As of Tuesday, there were 11,134 persons under the custody of the Division of Correction in the State of Wisconsin," Sanger B. Powers, division director told the Wisconsin Council of Catholic Women at its Wednesday morning convention session at the Catholic Club.

"Not one of these persons was predestined at birth," the speaker stated. "Each might have been a productive, contributing member of society if he had had different parents. It is my opinion that if he had been brought up with love, self-respect and understanding in the home, he would not be outside the law."

Youth can be led just as easily to wholesome activities, Mr. Powers commented. Mr. Powers pointed out that he deals daily with failures of society, church, school, community and family. The rejection, frustration and emotional deprivation undergone by these persons occurs in the formative years.

What Makes Criminal The speaker quoted a former Supreme Court justice's views on what makes a criminal. The bad family life often involves drinking, no love and family fighting. He has had teachers who have never looked beneath the surface to see the child himself. Usually the child has been sent home from school for being dirty or disobedient, thereby getting behind the rest of his class in school work. The child becomes known by his peers and teachers as a "rumbler." He is involved in no sports, scouting activities or church youth groups. By the age of 14, he has been arrested for petty theft and the cycle goes from there to more desperate crimes.

"This boy has never met an adult he can learn to trust," Mr. Powers strongly stated.

"Most offenders are from deprived backgrounds and have been treated so roughly that you can not possibly punish them as much as they have been already," Mr. Powers said.

He discussed the program in Wisconsin as being aimed at reformation and return of the individual to useful living. It is based on the inherent God-given worth of the individual.

The program's philosophy is based on four major points.

The importance of restoring self-respect and self-confidence is stressed. The system works to replace anti-social attitudes with pro-social ones.

Rehabilitation. Not Punishment. The second point is that the state does not see punishment as its duty, rather education, counseling, vocational training and exposure to religion. It tries to treat the causes which are responsible for the unlawful action.

Thirdly, the state of Wisconsin recruits and trains a staff which honestly can say it loves its fellow man, has the capacity to love those of whom it disapproves and who, with a sympathetic attitude and genuine effort, will help other persons.

The state, also fourth, believes in the capacity of people to change for the better if given the chance.

Individualized treatment is given through an established program for each offender. The program is one which is designed to have real meaning for him. Mr. Powers commented. It is matched to his ability, skills, training, IQ and educational level.

Presently, there are 17,011 persons on probation or parole in the state of Wisconsin. Mr. Powers spoke of this practice as a good investment, financially, too. On the "outside" it costs $25 per month to supervise an individual compared with $225 per month in an institution. These parolees earn an estimated $25 million per year on which taxes are paid and living maintained.

Return To Society

"We take a calculated risk that some will fail," the speaker said. "but it is important that they become productive members of society and that fathers live with their families and support them.

Mr. Powers compared the Wisconsin correction system with that in Oklahoma, which he visited last week. The population of Oklahoma is half that of Wisconsin. However, it has only 8 per cent of its lawbreakers on probation or parole, compared with 92 per cent in Wisconsin. There are only two teachers and no social workers employed to work in the correctional institutions.

"Wisconsin is concerned with guidance," the speaker noted. "and we utilize fully psychologists, social workers, medical doctors, and teachers for treatment of prisoners."

In Wisconsin, prisoners are regarded as being created in God's image, the speaker said. They are treated on a "love thy neighbor" basis and given "TLC — tender, loving care."

"Some say this is coddling," Mr. Powers said, "but the majority can be helped because of this."

The speaker stated, "The common human touch is a prerequisite for helping and counseling people."

Lack of Respect

"I don't think adults are setting a good example for children today," Mr. Powers stated. He pointed to the examples of unethical practice in public figures and the shoplifting charge against Hedy Lamar. "We formerly respected people by virtue of their positions, but now children hear bad things at home about President Johnson and others and have no respect for authority."

The morning convocation speaker noted that he felt there has been a general breakdown of respect in the country.

Independence Vital to Successful Aging

James McMichael, Madison, executive director of the Wisconsin Governor's Commission on Aging, challenged members of the Wisconsin Council of Catholic Women to decide what kind of old age they want, and then to do something about it. He addressed more than 100 delegates at the state convention Wednesday noon following a luncheon at the Catholic Club.

He had conducted interviews and investigations throughout the state concerning the problems of aging and the elderly when he took this position. From these, "I learned one thing," he said. "I can't forget, and you can't forget, that older people aren't different from any other individual in the state."

Seek Independence

On the basis of these investigations, Mr. McMichael discovered that just like anyone else, senior citizens want the opportunity to meet their problems themselves. "They have the desire to be free individuals, self-supporting, standing on their own two feet," he declared.

"In a Christian society we're all dependent on each other somewhat," he admitted, "but the feeling of having control of one's own life, the feeling of self-fulfillment is being constantly thwarted."

Form 10-Year Plan

"Looking at the status of elder citizens, we've set up a ten year plan," he continued. This plan will concentrate on three major areas.

The first is trying to provide the ability for the elderly to purchase goods and services for themselves, to provide an adequate income for them. The second is to assure the availability of foods and services. Lastly, the aim is to create a positive attitude toward aging, to look at old age and not deny it, to say it's just another part of life.

Adequate Income

By setting up pension programs, private annuities and a Social Security program, there should be a level of income necessary to maintain one's standard of living at retirement age, he said. This should be predicated on the personal needs of the individual.

With the "ever-rising cost of living," he said, "some outlive their retirement income. They just can't keep pace." That's where provisions to maintain the purchasing power of the older people are necessary.

To insure an income that will keep up with the cost of living, three approaches have been advocated. The first is a "portable pension" plan, whereby someone won't lose twenty years of accumulated pension benefits by changing jobs. This depends on the employer.

Equal Cost of Living

Another approach depends on government and contributions to establish a more regular method of maintaining cost of living increases.

The last method is to reach people during their middle years of life, to appeal to their own initiative and sense of responsibility. Planning for oneself is stressed here. Current figures indicate that a person lives an average of 15 years beyond retirement. So working people are encouraged to purchase stocks and plan for those years when they'll need an ever-increasing income.

By these means, it's hoped that the "severe, unbelievable poverty of some of the elderly can be diminished and eventually removed," he said.

The second area on which the commission is working is the provision of services people need and want.

In many parts of the state, home care, nursing homes and out-patient care simply aren't available. "This is true in the whole area of health services," Mrs. McMichael indicated.

To combat this, the commission wants to help people stay in their own homes, which is "cheaper to them and to society." To achieve this aim, many will need the services of a homemaker or maid to do light housekeeping, perhaps a program such as "meals on wheels" to bring hot meals into a home temporarily, and a social program of friends and visitors coming to call on the elderly so they're not isolated at home.

"People are buying services," he stated. "If they can be provided, people will purchase them."

By contacting persons in the "middle years of life," many habits can be started which have an effect on old age, making one age at a slower rate. Among these are diet and physical exercise, the "maintenance of the body structure."

There was a buzz of low conversation from the audience at this statement.

Struck Audience

"Apparently I'm hitting at home with some people here," Mr. McMichael observed. "So you feel guilty about eating that strawberry sundae," he said. "But you just had that small salad, so it's all right," he justified their indulgence.

And the problem of mental health in aging also is being considered. This is tied in with the new theory of aging, involving biological aging, psychological aging and sociological aging, he said.

The first type of aging is the purely physical effects, he stated, such as wrinkling, gray hair or hair loss, and diminishing of physical activity. The second is the attitude of the individual towards himself. The last is "how society looks at us as we grow old. So many of these ideas are incorrect."

Should Be Positive

Aging in itself involves a "tremendous interplay of these three forces," he went on. And, too often it becomes a "negative kind of thing. One should say: now I can do these things!" Mr. McMichael stated.

Rather than giving up on life when one reaches a certain age, an attitude sociologists term "disengagement," one should be helped to emphasize the things that can be done, the contributions that yet can be made, he said.

It involves working with people to maintain a vital, active interest in life, he said.

Special Housing

Mr. McMichael also mentioned the new concepts in retirement living, with "specially designed housing intended for people in the later years of life."

Helping people to live independently also requires the "opportunity to continue to learn," he said. Senior citizens also can help out in volunteer capacities. "They can and want to make contributions, but they must be willing to give of themselves. It's a two-way street."

One of the biggest concerns and the most overlooked, he added, was better transportation for the aged. Less than a fourth of the women in the state 65 or older drive a car. Of these, less than 50 per cent

Wednesday's Luncheon Speaker at the state convention of the Wisconsin Council of Catholic Women was James McMichael, executive director of the Wisconsin Governor's Commission on Aging. Here he chats with Mrs. Harry Long, Appleton; Mrs. J.

Calnins Mark Anniversary

BLACK CREEK — The Rev. Anthony Steff offered a mass of thanksgiving at St. Mary Catholic Church Sunday in observance of the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Calnin, Black Creek. The couple was married May 9, 1916, at St. Nicholas Catholic Church, Freedom.

Also present were Mrs. Margaret Van Deraa, Little Chute, and John Calnin, Appleton, a sister and brother of the couple, who were attendants at the wedding 50 years ago.

A family dinner was served at Penning's Country Club, Twelve Corners, followed by a reception for relatives and friends.

The Calnins have five children: Mrs. Lee Fischer, Hortonville; Mrs. LaVerne Stingle, Appleton; Earl, Black Creek; Richard, West De Pere, and Frank, Menasha. They also have 28 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Solo Parents To Sponsor Teen Dance

The Solo Parents' Club, an affiliate of the Neenah Y.W.C.A., will sponsor a Swing-A-Thon Dance from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday at Sabre Lanes, Menasha.

The four bands playing for the event are those that took highest ratings in a Rock-A-Thon contest held in February and March. They are "The Yorks", "The What Fours", "The No-Names" and "The Sands." Teenagers will choose their favorite in judging. Prizes will be given.

David L. Wagner, of The Post-Crescent, will emcee the dance. Part of the proceeds will be donated to a local charity.

Mrs. Leola Mehlberg, dance chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Van Dalen, Kaukauna; Mrs. Maida Markette, Neenah; Mrs. Leona Mullen, Appleton, and Mrs. John Pawelkiewicz, Menasha.

Churches Plan Fellowship Day

GREENVILLE — The E.U.B. churches of Greenville and Center and the Stephenville Methodist Church will have a May fellowship meeting at 8 p.m. Friday at the Center Emanuel Church. Sponsors are the Women's Societies of World Service. A worship service, movie and luncheon are planned.

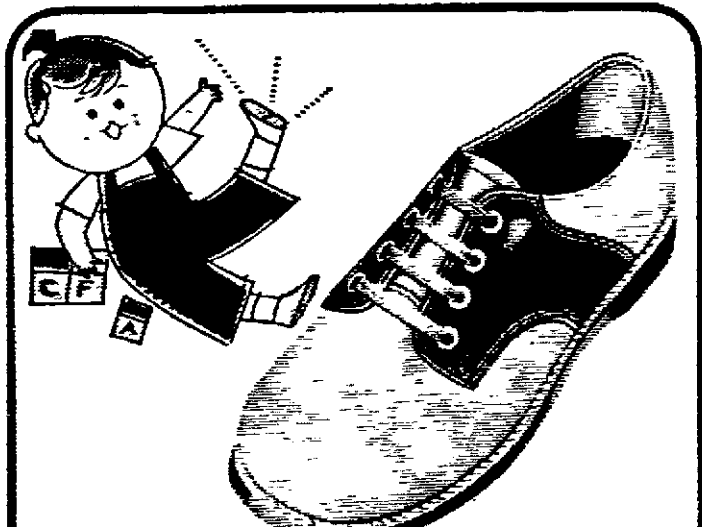

The Youth Fellowship of the churches will attend a rally at Forest Junction at 4.30 p.m. Sunday. They will view a movie about the Rev. Paul Carlson.

The Young Adults sponsored a fellowship meeting Wednesday evening at the Center church. Miss Muriel Wirth, a registered nurse from Rochester, showed pictures of her trip to Europe and the Holy Land.

The Rev. Russell Miller, pastor of the three parishes, was again appointed to serve them at a recent conference.

Wahini-Look

What in the name of Hawaii is exercise is all that's needed to a wahini? In the fashion context trim a heavy area, when your it's a wrap-around skirt that weight is normal.

Diet controls weight, exercise controls proportions — the distribution of weight. The crucial proportions in a good swimsuit figure occur at the waist, hip and leg. Exercises to trim these spots follow:

1 Waist Whittler Stand with back against wall, raise arms to sides at shoulder level and bend right knee up, as close to waist as possible. Pressing shoulders to wall, swing leg across body and try to touch knee to wall at left, swing back to starting position. Without stopping, repeat swinging action 20 times briskly. Then work with left leg.

2 Hip Trimmer Sit erect on floor, legs straight out and arms folded on chest. "Walk" 10 steps forward and backward on buttocks. Continue for one minute.

3 Leg Slimmer Grasp back of sturdy chair, fling right leg back and up, from raised position, repeatedly kick backward with shaking force. Give left leg same workout. Repeat 10 times, each side.

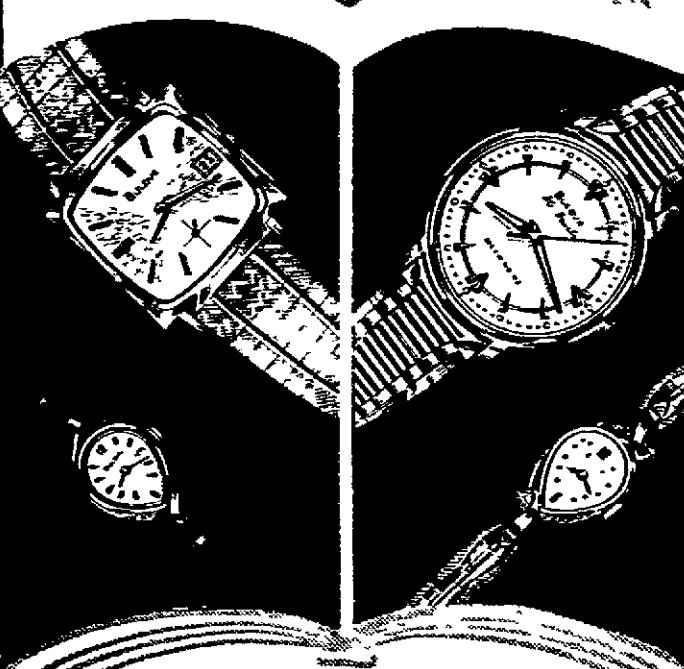

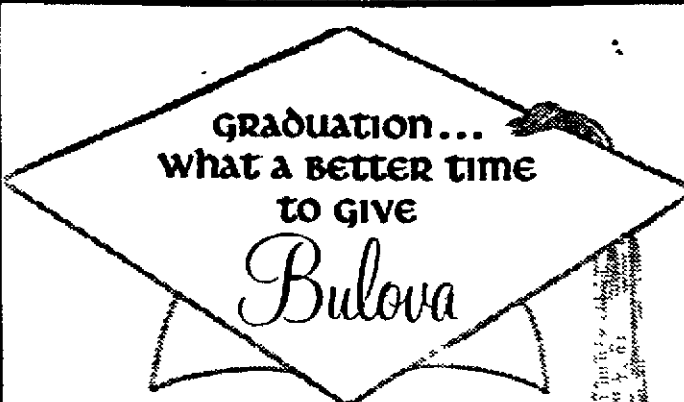

From the doing comes a taut, fit look. Better do! Tomorrow: Sun-and-Fun Groomers (Copyright, 1966)

DAILY NEWSPAPERS are a GROWTH BUSINESS

Newspapers go and grow where people go

America is people on the move. Nearly 30 million new housing units have been built since the end of World War Two. One out of every five Americans changes his residence every year. Every third day another town or village makes the transition from "rural" to "urban" status.

As America moves and grows so, too, do its newspapers go and grow—performing their daily mission of providing the information that people need where the people are.

To serve the needs of people, newspapers spring up or spread out to adapt to the changing face of America. Today there are more daily newspapers published in the United States than at the end of World War Two. There are more small ones and more large ones. For example, there are 20 more newspapers in the "over 100,000" circulation class today than in 1945 and six more in the "over 500,000" class. What's truly significant, however, is that today daily newspapers have greater circulation, contain more news and more advertising, and employ far more people than ever before.

Newspapers are growing for one reason: Only the newspaper covers the news fully and in depth. There is no substitute for the daily newspaper.

For more information on why daily newspapers are a growth business, write for a free copy of the new booklet, "The Growth of the American Daily Newspaper," an economic analysis published by the University of Wisconsin.

Auto Firms to Get Tougher In Answering Safety Critics

Ford Starts Tact by Calling Nader Ignorant of Vehicle Engineering

By CHARLES C. CAIN
AP Business News Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Auto companies apparently are going to get tougher in answering what they consider unfair criticism of their auto safety policies.

The new attitude was not aimed at government groups, such as the Ribicoff Senate Subcommittee on Traffic Safety, but rather at critics such as Attorney Ralph Nader.

Nader, author of a book "Unsafe at Any Speed," has won general recognition as the No. 1 critic of the auto industry. He has criticized safety features of both U.S. and foreign cars.

Henry Ford II started the new approach last month when he departed from a prepared text at a Ford plant dedication and leveled a blast at Nader.

The Ford board chairman said: "Frankly, I do not think he knows much about automobiles. He can read statistics and he can look up a lot of facts that are in the public domain but I don't think he knows anything

Youth Gets 3 Life Terms in Triple Slaying

No Reasons Found For Texas Murders By Industrialist's Son

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Paul Eric Krueger, who registered in a rooming house under the name Vic Solo a few hours after he shot three fishermen for no apparent reason, was sentenced, to three concurrent life terms in prison Wednesday.

The California youth's surprise pleas of guilty and immediate sentencing closed a case which Dist. Atty. Sam Jones of Corpus Christi, called "the most heinous crime ever committed in the history of the Texas Gulf Coast."

Krueger, the 18-year-old son of a San Clemente, Calif., industrialist, showed no emotion as sheriff's deputies hustled him from the courtroom. The defense waived all appeal and he will be sent quickly to the state prison at Huntsville.

He was indicted for the April 12, 1965, slayings of John D. Fox, 38; Noel D. Little, 51, and Van D. Carson, 40, all from Corpus Christi. They were shot while fishing off a pier 30 miles south of Corpus Christi.

The trial was transferred to Dallas on a change of venue. A similar move to Brenham earlier this year ended in a stalemate when a jury could not be selected.

Before Judge A. D. Jim Bowie passed sentence, Asst. Dist. Atty. Bill Alexander of Dallas read into the record several affidavits. These detailed how Krueger and a companion embarked on a trip to Venezuela which ended with the unprovoked slayings.

Krueger took the witness stand briefly to state that he had changed his plea voluntarily and the affidavits were "true and correct."

One was given by John Philip Angles, 16, of Hollywood, Calif., who came from California to Texas with Krueger and was present at the slayings. He now is in the state reform school at Gatesville.

Donny Warn Lays his crutches aside to pitch from his usual position. The 13-year-old polio victim from St. Paul, Minn., enjoys pitching more than hitting, and the folded arms of his infielder show her confidence in his expertness. Donny is a regular in the vacant-lot ball games. (AP Wirephoto)

Obey Supports Anti-Secrecy Law

Touchy Subject Doesn't Justify Secret Meeting, Assemblyman Says

MADISON (AP) — A touchy subject is no reason for a secret meeting, says Assemblyman David Obey. D-Wausau.

Obey told the Senate Judiciary Committee Wednesday that a secret meeting invites suspicion and does not help good government's cause.

"I think we make a mistake when we try to hold secret meetings on subjects just because they might be touchy," Obey said.

He spoke in support of a bill that would strengthen Wisconsin's anti-secrecy law.

Under the measure, which has wide support among newspapermen, no meetings could be held in secret at any level of government unless 24-hour public notice is given.

Obey said the bill would also require a transcript to be kept at all secret sessions.

Obey is sponsoring the measure along with Sens. Fred Riser, D - Madison and Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek.

Others speaking in favor of the bill at the hearing were Thomas G. Ragatz of Madison, a representative of the Wisconsin Daily Newspaper League; Carl Zielke of Madison, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Press Association, and Deputy Atty. Gen. Arlen Christenson.

Zielke suggested the bill might be broadened to provide for removal from office of officials who persistently violate the ban.

Complaints Received

He said the attorney general's office has received complaints of secrecy violations from newsmen in Lake Geneva, Plymouth and DePere.

The complaints did little good, he said, "because the meetings are over before anything can be done."

No one opposed the measure. There was also no dissent to a resolution urging a constitutional revision to increase Wisconsin's $100,000 debt ceiling.

The proposed amendment would let Wisconsin borrow directly up to five per cent of its total equalized valuation.

The 1970 evaluation figure has been projected at $30 billion. This would allow a maximum debt of $1.5 billion.

Proxmire Will Testify on Milk Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two days of hearings on the school milk bill began today with testimony by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., before a subcommittee of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Proxmire called for early passage of the bill of which he is the main sponsor. The bill would make the special milk program for school children permanent and increase federal funding for the program.

Proxmire called the legislation "essential to the health of our nation's school children."

The Administration has proposed an 80 per cent cutback in the school milk program.

"Although the present legislation authorizing the school milk program does not expire until June 30, 1967, Congress must act this year to foreclose with any certainty the death of this vital activity. Next year may well be too late," said Proxmire.

Primaries Give No Hint on Top Issues

Any Dissatisfaction Historically Works Against Party in Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine of the nine states which have held primaries held primaries, six have elected without any indication of the major impact at the polls from but in only two were incumbent two chief concerns among voters — the war in Viet Nam and the rising cost of living.

Historically, any widespread sense of discomfort or dissatisfaction has reacted against the ins, no matter of which party. Yet in the primaries thus far the voters have evidenced no disposition to turn out incumbent members of Congress who were challenged within their own parties.

Nevertheless, political strategists are holding to their estimates that what happens in the congressional elections next fall will be greatly influenced by the developments meantime in Viet Nam and on the price front.

Minority Gains Seats

In the normal course, the minority party picks up seats in the House of Representatives in an off year election, particularly when it has lost heavily in the presidential year as the Republicans did in 1964.

Thus, the GOP will have to gain a substantial number of House seats in order to claim a success in this year's campaigning.

Picking any number as the break even point between success and failure could bring arguments on both sides.

But Chairman John M. Bailey told the Democratic National Committee earlier this year that historically the party in power loses 37 seats in the House in an off year election. He reminded that the Democrats lost 77 seats in 1940, two years after a landslide victory by Franklin D. Roosevelt in the presidential election.

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen has been talking of a possible GOP pick-up of 50 seats.

Need 78 More

Holding 140 seats now, the Republicans would have to gain 78 in order to take control of the 435-member House.

Feisty Chihuahua Battles Dalmatian At His Own Risk

MILWAUKEE (AP) — When a chihuahua takes on a dalmatian, he does it at his own risk. Milwaukee County has decided.

It refused to pay the costs for repairing a chihuahua who ran afoul of a dalmatian and suffered $46.50 worth of damages.

The dog's owner, Mrs. Willard Berry of St. Francis, pressed the claim under a law allowing payment of damages done domestic animals by stray dogs.

The county board's Judiciary Committee ruled Wednesday that the law applies to chickens and rabbits, but not to another dog, regardless of size.

24,184 Cars Quarantined

Up to this point, 24,184 new 1962 American Motors cars had been built preparatory to going on sale Oct. 6. No cars were in customer hands.

All cars were immediately quarantined even though only two showed possibility of seal failure. None had been released for demonstration or other use.

"After 12 days of intensive inspection and inquiry our people decided to change the design of the ring type seals which eliminated the problem."

Abernethy said the by Sept. 23 about 10,000 of the brake cylinders had been checked. He said teams of engineers flew to all 23 AMC zone offices and replaced all the seal assemblies.

"The same process took place at the factory where 8,264 of the units were placed. All dealers were informed by telephone and instructed to remove all cylinders on new cars held for on-sale date of Oct. 6. Each of these cylinders was returned to the zone and replaced.

"One hundred per cent of corrections were made even before the 1962 car was offered for sale, even though only a fraction of a percentage of units revealed the possibility of seal leakage," Abernethy added.

Michigan Gov. George Romney, who was president of AMC at the time of the brake incident, took a detailed explanation along to Washington Tuesday when he testified on auto safety before a House committee. He did not get around to publicizing AMC's answer to Nader but Abernethy took care of that today.

Forgetful Thief Regains Shoes While Victim Telephones Sheriff

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — R.C. Austin was awakened about 4 a.m. one morning recently by the slamming of his back door. He said he rushed to the back door, where he saw the thief's shoes outside the door.

But while he telephoned the sheriff the thief returned and got his shoes, Austin said.

Little Opposition Educational TV Stations Pass Assembly Unit Vote

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — A bill which would create educational television stations in the Fox Valley and Eau Claire areas sailed through the Assembly Education Committee Wednesday, meeting little opposition.

The committee voted to recommend the bill for passage in the lower house after listening to six witnesses endorse educational television in general and the proposed stations in particular. The vote to endorse was 9 to 2, with only Assemblymen David Martin (R-Neenah) and Kenneth Merkel (R-Brookfield) opposing the measure.

The legislation would allow the Coordinating Committee for Higher Education (CCHHE) to spend $345,000 of state funds already appropriated to the unit for other purposes for the two stations, which could be operated by the summer of 1967. The state money would be joined with $645,000 of federal aid, which will no longer be available to Wisconsin for educational television use after the start of July, the committee was warned.

The federal funds are part of a four year old appropriation made by Congress for the development of educational television in general and the proposed stations in particular. The vote to endorse was 9 to 2, with only Assemblymen David Martin (R-Neenah) and Kenneth Merkel (R-Brookfield) opposing the measure.

The legislation would allow the Coordinating Committee for Higher Education (CCHHE) to spend $345,000 of state funds already appropriated to the unit for other purposes for the two stations, which could be

Pulitzer Prize Winners Tell The War Story of the 173rd

Paratroopers Still Swagger After One Year in Viet Nam

Editor's Note — Last week Peter Arnett won a Pulitzer Prize for his reporting of the war in Viet Nam. A year earlier, Horst Faas won a Pulitzer for his photography of the war. In this dispatch the two Pulitzer winners tell of what the 173rd Airborne has learned in its year in Viet Nam. Both men have been along on many 173rd operations.

By PETER ARNETT and HORST FAAS
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The 173rd Airborne Brigade ranks as the American unit with longest combat experience in Viet Nam. It observed this week the first anniversary of service on Vietnamese soil, and some of its men talked of the things they've learned. Many of those who landed a year ago "behaved like they were immortal," one officer recalls. Some of them were to learn the truth the hard way.

The paratroopers, all volunteers, are a swaggering lot of soldiers, confident of their ability and believing the scruffily dressed, emaciated-looking Viet Cong appeared more like bandits than soldiers.

Still Swagger
The 173rd still has swagger and confidence. But it has learned that the enemy in tattered clothes, dragged from an "iron triangle" tunnel or a delta hut, was much more tenacious and fanatical than his appearance suggested.

"He is tough, fanatical and resourceful," says a company commander.

"We didn't give him the credit, and we paid with blood for our ignorance."

The 173rd has shed blood over much of Viet Nam, ranging from the coast of the South China Sea across to the Cambodian border in the northern Mekong Delta, Zone D, the Iron Triangle, and the Central Highlands.

Sun-Tanned Scarred
The paratroopers have bronzed forearms cross-hatched with white thorn scars from bamboo thickets. Hours of straining for the enemy seems to have fixed their eyes a bit deeper in their faces.

The sun shimmering off the rice paddy waters has bleached their hair and etched crow's feet around the eyes. The 19-year-olds leaving for home after completing a year here look much like the 35-year-olds arriving.

Looking back over the year, some of the best men in the brigade see a big gap between what the 173rd should have been when it arrived, and what it was.

Lot to Learn
"We still have a lot to learn, like maneuver, survival, endurance, discipline. And all of us should use our brains more," says one of the most respected sergeants in the brigade.

"When something is goofed up or doesn't work out as it should, we always say, 'You can't help it, that's the Army. The Army is always like that.' That excuse is not valid for Viet Nam if we really want to kick the Viet Cong in the teeth and out of here."

This feeling of dissatisfaction is expressed only by perfectionists in the brigade. Most of the paratroopers are proud of their achievements.

Many officers and NCOs feel they have started to learn the basics of jungle warfare. "But next month I am going home," one said. "For purely military considerations I think that officers and top sergeants at least should stay two or three years in Viet Nam. But you won't find anyone willing to be quoted on that because they all want to go home."

Some officers have extended for another year, mainly to help their careers. Other officers have found that the infantry is still the roughest and most dangerous occupation in the Army, and seek softer spots.

Discover Necessities
The 173rd infantrymen have made some discoveries about field gear:

Their tropical olive-drab uniforms are light enough, but too fragile and sometimes tear when the troops leap from helicopters, leaving legs and thighs exposed to red ants and other jungle denizens.

They reject flak-vests because of the heat, and argue about steel helmets but continue to wear them for protection against shrapnel.

They find that C-ration chocolate is usually too old to eat, that night flares are too dim, that the Australians have better air mattresses and ponchos, and that bayonets are useless.

Asked what he would like most in Viet Nam, a top sergeant of one company said, "I want less heroes and more soldiers in Viet Nam. Every guy over here thinks he deserves the Medal of Honor."

Genuine Heroes
But the 173rd had plenty of genuine heroes, including two of the three medals of honor won in Viet Nam this past year. The 1st Battalion of the 173rd is the most decorated battalion in the country.

Has the 173rd had tangible success in its year here? Lt. Clarence Johnson, from Des Moines, Iowa, observes: "We Americans are an idealistic lot, and therefore after a year here we look for tangible evidence of success. But there is none after all our battles."

Other officers see the continued fighting posture of the 173rd as success enough.

Most of the men who came to Viet Nam with the 173rd one year ago have gone home now. New men have replaced them.

Do Not Love War
A company commander, Capt. Romei L. Brownlee, from Odessa, Tex., spoke some kind of epilogue for those who are going home from the unit: "Nobody who has seen our own dead will forget them, or the wounded, as they were brought in, or the memorial services after every operation."

"We did not mind the crawling in the mud, or the staying in the jungle. We grew accustomed to sleeping with wet clothes, and going unwashed for weeks."

"But we did not get used to being shot at. We have only learned to be more careful when we are shot at."

"Viet Nam has not made us warlovers."

Calculated Escalation
The 173rd came in from its Okinawa base to bolster Vietnamese forces sagging under Viet Cong thrusts. It was calculated escalation of the war.

This most modern brigade was self-sufficient in artillery, and helicopters and trained for two years in Pacific jungles.

But the 173rd came with strings attached.

"We came defensively oriented," a battalion commander said. He meant the 173rd was told not to take heavy casualties, particularly the loss of a battalion or a company. They were told the political and propaganda aspects of a defeat were far greater than the military implications. These political considerations slowed the brigade down. They were poised to assist embattled Vietnamese battalions at the battles of Dong Xoai and Duc Co but never directly committed.

Flexed Muscles
As time went on it became evident that North Viet Nam was responding to the mounting U.S. buildup with a troop buildup of its own. The 173rd began to flex its muscles.

Unwieldy brigade-sized sweep operations were dropped in favor of battalion-sized moves. One officer put it this way: "In the long run, we became more willing to take a chance."

The more the paratroopers looked for the Viet Cong, the more they found them. These were usually bloody little encounters of short duration, fought around a primitive bunker or a row of trenches that even when taken would have to be abandoned when the paratroopers returned to base.

This proved a major frustration. "We keep going back, back to the same places," one sergeant said. "We see the helmets of our buddies killed the month before, and the piles of C-rations we left behind."

Human Wave
The Viet Cong decided in late March to try and teach the 173rd a lesson. It launched human wave assaults against the dug-in paratroopers. The Viet Cong lost 400 dead. Paratrooper losses were negligible.

The official total of enemy dead by body count at the end of a year was 1,573, almost exactly a 10 to 1 kill ratio favoring the Americans. The brigade says it didn't lose a weapon to the enemy, but captured 500 of theirs. Viet Cong bullets and mines accounted for about 600 paratroopers wounded.

Some officers would like to see a far bigger effort by the United States in Viet Nam. One of them said: "We understand the political background of the war, but it's difficult to understand why we don't go all-out to win. We seem to be fighting here not to win a war, but for political considerations."

Feels Lives Are Wasted
"It seems a war is being fought here to forestall a bigger war. Sometimes on these operations I have the feeling that lives are wasted. I hate to think that some people might say of us, 'They were sacrificed in Viet Nam, just like the French.'"

Milk Production Shows Little Chance of Rise

The Agriculture Department said Tuesday April production was 4 per cent below a year earlier. This was the fourth consecutive month output fell below a year earlier.

A 12-member jury Wednesday committed on him by Knocke on afternoon ruled for a Wisconsin Nov. 28, 1964 in the Town of Conservation Department warden in connection with an assault and battery suit brought against him by a rural Hortonville man.

The suit, in which $10,000 damages was sought, was brought by Arland Rehen, route 2, Hortonville, against Donald Knocke, a game warden, who lives at 128 S. Seventh Avenue, Winneconne.

The case, which featured two days of testimony, was heard in Outagamie County Court Branch 3, before Judge Raymond P. Dohr. Seven men and five women formed the jury which was out an hour and 15 minutes before returning its unanimous verdict late Wednesday.

Knocke was represented by William Eich, as assistant attorney general for the state, and Rehen was represented by Appleton attorney Allan Cain.

At the right are newspapers of Appleton, including three German language papers. Open, left, is a Bible, and immediately above it the handwritten history of the Y identifiable only by a few snatches of paragraphs on otherwise blank pages from which the ink faded. The Appleton Daily Post, top paper, lists the other items as the names of fund donors throughout the city; names of the incorporating founders, a copy of the Aug. 24, 1914, dedication program and two YMCA publications.

"Several large tracts of land have been subdivided in these ground cable construction areas and are rapidly being developed for home and commercial construction," Van Sistine said. He expects the job to be completed in August.

The recently completed underground cable construction involved placing 890 feet of conduit and 7,600 feet of cable under E. College Avenue and in an adjacent subdivision.

"Appleton's growth has made it necessary to provide additional facilities to serve the expanding area between Midpark Drive and Theodore Street south of College Avenue," Van Sistine said.

The buried cable project scheduled for next month will involve the placing of more than 24,000 feet of cable from Appleton to Greenville and Hortonville. Approximately 12 miles of aerial wire will be replaced by the buried cable. Van Sistine expects this project to be completed in August.

Pipeline Data Requested by Commission

Wants Information Prior to Request For Payments

The Appleton Water Commission wants to be kept better informed on the Lake Winnebago pipeline project.

R. D. DeLand, commission chairman, sent a letter to the board of public works recently asking that all invoices concerning the water expansion project be addressed to the commission.

The point was raised by the water commission that it is being called upon to approve payment of bills without having official certification the work was actually done.

Eventual Bonding
Eventually, all expenses connected with the water expansion project will have to be compiled and included in the revenue bond issue to underwrite construction of the pipeline, addition to the water filtering plant and a water intake line into the lake.

Commenting on the commission's letter to the board, Public Works Director Robert W. Bues said he recognized the commission's position that the individual signing the contracts with the water project consultants should certify the work as having been done when the invoices are received here.

DeLand said the commission discussed the water project billings at its May 5 meeting. He noted that in addition to bills from the consultants, land appraisal costs were also involved.

The city will buy lake shore land for a water intake station. Be Aware of Action

"Further it is the feeling of the commission it should be aware of the results of the appraisal since they would be involved in the purchase of the property," DeLand wrote.

Consoer Townsend and Associates of Chicago, the firm contracted for preparing plans and supervising construction of the pipeline, has estimated the cost of the raw water pumping station at $600,000 and a 42-inch supply line from the lake to the treatment plant at $769,000.

Lease Phone Facilities
Ninth Firm Indicates Its Interest in CATV

A ninth company has indicated interest in providing Appleton with community antenna television (CATV).

Wisconsin Community TV, Inc. of Milwaukee, wrote city officials Wednesday that it wanted to provide the CATV service here.

"We propose to lease from the Wisconsin Telephone Co. facilities adequate for furnishing CATV service to residents of your city," the company spokesman wrote.

He said the firm would proceed with such an application to the federal communication commission to obtain a

"We may erect within your municipal boundaries a community antenna for which we will of course first obtain the requisite building permit," he added.

The question was asked whether the City of Appleton has any ordinances requiring a license, franchise or permit to render CATV service. It does not.

Requests from eight other firms for an exclusive franchise for CATV systems here are pending before the council.

Froehlich to Seek Third Assembly Term

Appleton Legislator Becomes Spokesman On Urban Problems

Appleton Assemblyman Harold V. Froehlich announced today he is a candidate for reelection to the Wisconsin Legislature from Outagamie County's Third Assembly District.

Froehlich is chairman of the GOP Assembly Caucus, has served on the Assembly judiciary, municipalities and taxation committees and has served on Legislative Council committees studying urban problems and taxation.

Froehlich is seeking his third term in the Legislature.

Since his district is entirely urban (in the city of Appleton), Froehlich has become a major spokesman in behalf of urban problems in the Legislature.

Some of the legislation and bills he has become identified with are reapportionment, county board reform, improved election laws, daylight saving time uniformity, permitting the sale of colored oleomargarine, modernization of annexation laws, and revision of state highway aid formulas.

Board Committee Studies Request For Headquarter, Hangar Unit

The Fox Cities Composite and appearance the present Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol terminal building at the new (CAP) is seeking space to airport.

In addition to space for the building, the CAP unit would need "minimal access" to an apron or tie-down area and would ask that the county provide a "hookup" for water and sewage.

Calumet County Delays Action On Green Bay Retardate Center

SHERWOOD — Calumet County Association for Retarded Children delayed action until June 6 on supporting the proposed $640,000 Brown County Community Center for mental retardates in Green Bay, at a meeting at Twain School Monday.

Robert Allen, executive director of the Brown County chapter, said the unit recently received a federal grant of $256,000 for the facilities which will serve Region 7, which includes Calumet County.

Allen, said $384,000 had to be raised locally, 80 per cent from Brown County and the balance of $65,000 to $75,000 from the remaining counties within the next five years. Funds had to be pledged by June 30, he said.

Operating costs would be handled by Brown County through state aid, the Brown County United Fund, fees for sub-contract work and from services offered to vocational rehabilitation.

$50,000 Building Cost

The structure will serve for 50 years under agreement with the federal government. Some 12,000 to 15,000 mentally retarded persons live in the region Allen said.

Questioned whether retardates from Calumet County would be admitted to the center if money was not pledged by the county, Allen said they would not be turned away. However, counties supporting the program would be allowed two representatives on the steering committee.

The program, he emphasized, will not interfere with special medical study for area doctors classes in the county as only and nurses.

Many attending expressed enthusiasm for the program, training in Green Bay. Some admitting that they had a change of mind after hearing Allen's discussion. A public meeting will be June 6 in Chilton, with members given a vote. The public will be welcomed before the plans were submitted for federal aid, Allen Hope Day Care Center in Chilton and a small representative of the project.

Fox Cities School Proposed

Criteria to be Outlined On Vocational Districts

MENASHA — Members of the vocational and adult board were briefed Tuesday on some points which will be considered at a Fox Valley vocational meeting at 7 p.m., Monday, May 16, at Sheboygan.

Clarence L. Greiber, state director, will present the criteria for formulating the proposed area vocational schools on that date at the Sheboygan Vocational and Adult school. It is expected that information which has not previously been released will be made available at that meeting, one board spokesman said.

It is presently known that the combination of the five vocational schools in the Fox Cities (Kimberly, Kaukauna, Appleton, Neenah and Menasha) would meet the criteria for a new vocational district.

The state committee has established a district minimum of 237,000 in population, $500 million in assessed valuation and a minimum of 3,800 possible high school graduates each year as basic requirements. This is designed to provide an enrollment of 920 students in an area post-graduate technical institute.

A new district including the five existing vocational districts — the north end of Winnebago County, all of Outagamie County, two-thirds of Calumet County and part of Waupaca County — exceeds these requirements.

This area has a population base of 253,000; an assessed valuation of approximately $1.3 billion; and a 4,700 high school graduate potential.

There are 23 school districts included in the proposed area vocational district. Standards are to be announced for the state-wide.

The Northeast Association includes Shawano, Green Bay, Appleton, Fond du Lac, Ripon, Brillion, Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha and other area churches. Approximately 50 persons are expected to attend.

The Rev. Eugene E. Grau, a missionary in West Africa, will be the guest speaker. He is on a furlough in the United States.

Pastor Grau teaches at the Trinity College, Legon, Ghana. He is an interdenominational theological school near the University of Ghana. The school has approximately 50 Ghanaian students training for the Christian ministry. He has served in Ghana since 1946.

The United Church Board for World Ministries has an overseas staff of about 450 missionaries, serving as teachers, doctors, nurses, agricultural experts, social service workers and ordained ministers in 30 countries.

High Court Reverses Sitter Ruling

NEENAH — The State Supreme Court Tuesday reversed a decision by Judge James Sitter that quashed subpoenas on four Neenah policemen calling for their appearance at adverse hearings in a driving under the influence of intoxicants case of more than a year ago.

Clem Alsteen, 26, 635 S. Commercial St., was arrested March 20, 1965, following a minor traffic mishap. After numerous hearings, the defendant and his attorney sought to have the four policemen examined before a court examiner.

City Atty. Charles Schaller moved to quash the subpoenas on the basis that the violation of the city ordinance was not a civil action — which provides for the right of adverse examination. Judge Sitter ruled in favor of the motion.

The case was appealed to the Supreme Court which decided under certain circumstances adverse hearings could be called in such cases. Schaller called the decision "extremely helpful" to municipal attorneys and judges dealing with the right to adverse examination in city ordinance violation cases. He said the Supreme Court clarified recent decisions on the matter of civil vs. criminal cases.

Education Official At Winneconne

Plan on or before June 15, Griebner's office said today.

Action is expected to be taken on May 24 at the state vocational board meeting Greiber revealed in April.

The board approved the purchase of two IBM executive typewriters.

At WSU-O 'Read-In'

Poets Anguished by War

BY PETER GENIESSE

OSHKOSH — Ten poetic "doves" spoke the voice of doom, death and destruction through verse at a "read-in" against the war in Viet Nam Wednesday evening on the Wisconsin State University - Oshkosh campus.

Some 350 persons, mostly students, applauded the noted young bards, who numbered among themselves a Pulitzer Prize winner and professors from six midwestern universities.

The two-hour program called for three rounds of metre and rhyme by each poet. Each responded by denouncing U.S. action in Viet Nam in his own manner.

The themes generally centered on G.I.'s killing and burning Vietnamese civilians and on the evils of war itself.

Anti-Napalm

One poet recited a poem denouncing the invention of napalm, perfected, he said, by a neighbor of his. Another caustically commented on the use of "jelly gasoline" in clever rhyme.

One verse, entitled "Letter from the Vietnamese People," spoke of the American generals "drinking the blood of children."

Bearded W. D. Snodgrass, 1960 Pulitzer Prize winner for a collection entitled "Heart's Needle," and presently professor of English at Wayne State University, gave three theatric readings, including one how he was taught while in the service to blind a man and then kill him.

Most of the poems were original, although a few were borrowed from such writers as Chilean Communist Poet Pablo Neruda and Robert Penn Warren.

Donald Justice, a pacifist poet from the University of Iowa, pulled a theatrical switch by burning a card containing his poem against the draft while reading it.

The news media came under attack by two of the young poets. One described the news coverage in Viet Nam as "obscene and pornographic."

The session was supposed to be "non-political" but President Johnson, Secretary of Defense McNamara and other political figures were attacked repeatedly in verse.

Marvin Bell, bushy moustached bard from the University of Iowa, said "Lady Bird thought of Viet Nam not as a place but a state of mind," and "Colonel Corbione, Texas and Viet Nam were spinning together."

Morgan Gibson, of the University of Wisconsin - Milwaukee, satirically spoke of "the soldiers of the peace offensive climbing Johnson's ladder."

Kentucky Poet Wendell Berry stated prior to the beginning of the program, "I've not come to speak against my country but for the community of all the living in the world."

He said he believed all men shared the same humanity and destiny and employed a few catch phrases in his pacifistic stand. "Freedom can't be secured by oppression," and "One Can't correct one's enemy by killing him."

Other speakers during the session included George Chambers, WSU-O professor; Barbara Gibson, University of Wisconsin - Milwaukee; James Hazard, WSU-O, who acted as emcee; George Starbuck, University of Iowa, and Lucien Stryk, Northern Illinois University.

Midwest Tour

Several of the poets are making the circuit of midwestern campuses with a group labeled "The American Writers Against the War in Viet Nam."

The writers' group was formed last March by Robert Bly and David Roy along with the help of one-time "beat mystic" Lawrence Ferlinghetti. Bly was scheduled to speak at the WSU-O "read-in" but at the last minute was unable to attend.

A dozen charter members formed the organization to encourage writers and students to take a public stand on the war and to encourage readings at all major campuses in the country.

Wednesday's session in the lounge of the Reeve Memorial Union was jointly sponsored by the newly-organized Peace Forum, Student Religious Liberals, Alpha Delta Theta, Christian Science, World Understanding Society, International Relations Club and the Wisconsin Review.

People Are Major Problem At Intersection

The major problem at the State and Franklin Street intersection is people.

That was the consensus recently when the city council's public safety committee took another look at the "problem intersection" at the suggestion of Ald. Al Stoebauer (4th).

Since April 26 additional signs have been erected at the intersection to prevent arterial violations by drivers, hoping they will take more notice of the signs.

The major problem at this location seems to be the failure of drivers to stop for the stop signs on State Street," reported City Planner-traffic engineer Walter G. Rasmussen.

However, he recommended that red flashers be placed on the stop signs.

Book Man for Beating

OSHKOSH — Donald F. Konitzer, 31, 210 W. Peckham St., Neenah, was charged Wednesday afternoon with intent to do great bodily harm in connection with the alleged striking of his wife, Mary, about the shoulders and head with a golf club Wednesday in the Town of Menasha.

County Judge James Sitter set further proceedings for May 27 to give Konitzer's attorney time to investigate the complaint. Konitzer was released on $500 bond.

Police Find Teen-Age Youths In Church Vandalism Case

NEENAH — After an intensive investigation, Neenah police found the vandals who caused extensive damage to the interior of Our Savior Lutheran Church, 809 S. Commercial St. Authorities questioned a 15-year-old boy Wednesday afternoon. The Neenah youth admitted causing the damage and also implicated another 15-year-old boy who is presently at Wales School for Boys.

Conflicting Street Petitions Filed

NEENAH — Street improvements, long a thorny issue for property owners who have repeatedly objected that curb and gutter wasn't necessary in front of their homes — mainly because of the assessments involved, is an issue starting to divide households.

Among the six petitions read at the Wednesday meeting of the committee of public works, three involved Bette Avenue. One was signed by 28 residents opposing street work, another by 30 citizens who wanted the work done and the third by seven residents who wished to remain neutral.

There were two cases where the wife petitioned the work be opposed it.

California Ruling Incites Candidates

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California's campaign for governor got a bristling new issue today, provided by the State Supreme Court's decision to overrule a state constitutional amendment that allowed racial discrimination in housing.

Candidates fired away with comments on the high court's 5 to 2 ruling that threw out the amendment giving landlords and homeowners the right to refuse to rent or sell to anyone—even on grounds of race or religion. The court held that the amendment violated the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Two lawmakers demanded that Gov. Edmund G. Brown submit the issue to an election-year legislative session already packed with controversy.

Los Angeles Mayor Samuel W. Yorty, Brown's main foe in the June 7 Democratic primary, said the court "leaked" its decision to the governor several weeks ago.

Ronald Reagan, campaigning for the Republican nomination for governor, called on Brown to start enforcing the Rumford Act, the antidiscrimination housing law that had been nullified by the amendment.

Rosie the Duck Scheduled to be Evicted in Miami

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Zoning officials say this is the last day of leniency for Rosie the duck. But the Carmine Giorgio family is determined to keep the year-old quacker and her duckling playmate.

Rosie reportedly wakes up neighbors at 4:30 in the morning and the Metro Building and Zoning Department ordered the Giorgios to get rid of Rosie by today.

The Giorgio children, Franca, 13, and Ava, 7, sent a petition to the zoning department with names of 20 neighbors who said they had no objection to Rosie. But the department stuck to its ruling.

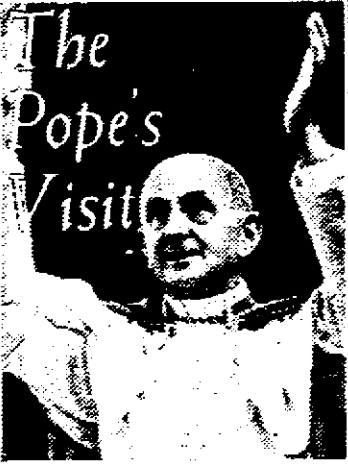

The Giorgio children say they've talked a friend into keeping Rosie and her playmate until the heat's off.

Injured Doll Brought Home by Ambulance

CHESAPEAKE, W. Va. (AP) — Kristine Kinder's doll was sent to a repair shop two weeks ago after its legs were torn off. Kristine's mother, Betty Jo Kinder, arranged to have the doll returned by ambulance to her 6-year-old daughter at school.

Dozens of youngsters watched as ambulance attendants solemnly carried the doll into Kristine's first-grade classroom and delivered it, as good as new.

Pleads Guilty Of Resisting County Arrest

Officials Testify
Oshkosh Man Struck
Police, Bystander

Buford Lawson, 22, 925 Dove St., Oshkosh, charged with resisting arrest following a fracas in which an Outagamie County traffic patrolman and two other persons were struck Friday night, pleaded guilty Wednesday afternoon and was fined $150 and costs or 60 days in jail.

Lawson appeared with his attorney in Outagamie County Court Branch 2. His case had been postponed twice this week, once to allow him time to retain an attorney, and the second time to allow Dist. Atty. Nick F. Schaefer an opportunity to confer with Winnebago County officials on traffic charges pending there against Lawson.

Patrolman Stanley Arnold told the court Wednesday, following Lawson's guilty plea, that he was called about 9:30 p.m. Friday to investigate an accident. He discovered that Lawson's car ran into the rear of a truck on County Trunk BB at S Bluemound Road.

The accident occurred in Winnebago County, but the vehicles came to rest in Outagamie County.

Arnold said Lawson became abusive and struck a bystander in the face after the Oshkosh man was ordered to get out of the way of traffic while police were investigating the accident. person living in the same apartment building that Mollet was held in jail. Arnold told the court.

When authorities freed the man's hands and legs, he began scuffling and struck a Winnebago County policeman. Arnold tow truck to secure his feet said.

Lawson still faces three traffic charges, arising from the accident, in Winnebago County.

The Oshkosh man, who said Winnebago authorities declined jurisdiction in the resisting arrest case against Lawson, chair and was wheeled into a Dist. Atty. Nick F. Schaefer told cell, in the Outagamie County, the court Wednesday.

'Come Blow Your Horn' Has Inspired Moments

BY DAVID F. WAGNER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — The opening stage, Berger read his lines in night of Oshkosh Community Players' production of "Come Blow Your Horn" Wednesday. Two newcomers to the stage had its moments — both good — Frances Prescott and Judie Hall — were attractive but and bad.

Hollandtown Pupils Plan Culture Program

HOLLANDTOWN — A special hour-long program will be presented by pupils of St. Francis Catholic School from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Sunday in the church basement.

Children will give a public exhibition of subjects not taken from their text books. Sister Mary Frederick, who is in charge of the program, said.

The program includes an original playlet written by seventh grade pupils; physical education demonstration by pupils in the fifth and sixth grades; choral reading by seventh and eighth grades, and poems and songs by the primary grades. Children in the third and fourth grade will have an art display.

Danish-Colonial. From a color standpoint, the set was tasteful, but from a decorator's view, Alan Baker's apartment was a disaster area.

Lighting was consistently bright, though at times it might have been dimmer to accent the "romantic" scenes.

If occasionally flat, the Play-ly "Horn" is nonetheless an enjoyable comedy, thanks mainly to Simon's wit as an author.

"Come Blow Your Horn" will continue tonight and Friday at 8:15.

School Boards Would Receive Greater Powers Under New Bill

MADISON — The powers of Wisconsin's 395 school boards would be increased under a bill introduced by unanimous consent of the 12-member Committee on Legislative Procedure of the State Senate today.

The bill offered on motion of State Sen. Chester E. Dempsey, (Rep.) route 1, Hartland, would abolish the 19 Cooperative Educational Service Agencies and their created last Jan. 1 and transfer all their powers and duties to the respective school boards in Wisconsin.

Sen. Dempsey stated he felt the chances for passage of the bill would be good. He claims the move would save the taxpayers of Wisconsin $1,102,000 per biennium. The original CESA legislation was passed to eliminate the obsolete office of county superintendent of schools and to replace the county school committee with the new CESA.

The various school boards committee on the local level since the county school committee had completed its work of placing all the territory in Wisconsin in operating high county board for educational school districts.

Powers Listed
The bill would give the school boards the following powers:

—Either upon their own motion or upon petition of 10 percent of the electors in each of two or more districts, school district reorganization could be proposed and effected by a majority vote of each school board.

—After a public hearing the school boards could issue orders of school district reorganization and their orders would be subject to appeal by any person filed with the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Appeals Possible
—Persons aggrieved by an order of the state superintendent may appeal therefrom to the Circuit Court of any county in which any territory of the reorganized district lies.

—Within 30 days after the date of mailing of any order of school district reorganization a referendum may be had on the order by petition.

—The various school boards would be empowered to contract with another school board for any service which it is empowered to provide, or with any other school board for educational services.

—School districts could also provide special teachers, school psychologists, school social workers and other personnel as to share the cost with and between school districts on a part-time basis.

The bill was referred to the Senate Education Committee where it will be scheduled for a public hearing.

Use Helpful Toothpaste Tip To Overcome Empty Tube

BY CAPPY DICK

Today's fun-project is a method of overcoming an "empty" toothpaste tube and getting from it the paste for one more brushing before the tube is discarded as actually empty.

You can do it with a toothpick applied as shown in the adjoining illustration.

This bit of knowledge can be useful to any boy or girl when the need for a new tube of toothpaste was overlooked the day before and a new day dawns with the supposedly empty tube still on the bath room shelf.

Instead of despairing, you can get the paste for the morning's brushing by using a toothpick to remove it from the spout of the rolled-up tube

Use the last dab

Simply dip the wide end of the toothpick into the neck of the tube, scrape up the paste that's there, apply it to the bristles of your toothbrush and go ahead and brush your teeth.

Of course, don't again forget to get a new tube of paste. The emergency supply removed from the old tube is most likely the last it can provide.

Positive, Negative Are Cliches, Doctor Claims

BY JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D. appear as heavy shadows. Sometimes I wonder if we wouldn't get along at least as well if we discarded the expression, "X-rays were negative." Not that the phrase isn't explicit when properly understood, but it has come to be a cliché, and like most clichés, it has generally lost its pure original meaning.

A negative finding in an X-ray doesn't mean that everything is all right; it just means that the X-ray didn't reveal anything early cancer of the cervix, but a wrong. Indispensable as the X-ray doesn't ray is, it can't do everything or show diabetes, or anemia, but see everything.

An X-ray indicates the density of tissues through which the rays pass. Bones, being dense, phrase "X-rays were negative"

Flesh, not so dense, throws a lighter shadow. From this fact we can deduce a great many things — but not everything. An X-ray of a gall bladder isn't of much use unless a dye is allowed to filter into the organ first. The same is true of gastro-intestinal X-rays. A barium drink or barium enema fills the intestine with a solution through which X-rays do not pass easily, and a sharp outline of the intestine results. Often dye is introduced into the bloodstream to make blood vessels visible.

In the common and very valuable chest X-ray, air in the lungs is less dense than surrounding flesh, so irregularity or craters in the lung become visible. Calcified spots (healed areas) will show.

So accept X-ray for the things it does so well; don't use the phrase "X-rays were negative" as meaning everything is all right. Some other test may be necessary to make visible whatever is wrong. That, indeed, is the reason for exploratory surgery at times.

One letter before me asks: Will cancer show up in an X-ray? We are in close contact with a person who says he has several spots on the lungs and it is hopeless cancer. Could the spots be T.B.? Should we be checked? — Mrs. J. C.

In such a case an expert at reading X-rays would have little difficulty in distinguishing between the characteristic patterns of the two diseases. A sputum test, however, would make things quite definite. Cancer and T.B. could exist at the same time!

A man with ear trouble asks: take X-rays of ears? Won't the inner ear show? — E. K.

X-ray in some instances can be useful, but the heavy bone structure of the skull makes it difficult, and conventional methods of examination give more information.

To get back to "negative," and "positive," a married woman writes:

I was given a urine test which the doctor said proved positive. What does this mean? That I am positively pregnant? — Mrs. H. R.

It's difficult to tell. It could have been a pregnancy test, or a test for diabetes, or for venereal disease, even. It depends on the test. He probably meant that the urine test for pregnancy indicated you were pregnant.

That's why I think these terms are getting out of hand. STAR DASH

Dear Dr. Molner: Are roasted, salted-in-the-shell peanuts fattening? My friend says yes. I say no. — A.P.

Peanuts are high in protein and fat, hence if you eat too many of them they'll be fattening. Some of the fat will be removed by roasting. The answer is yes.

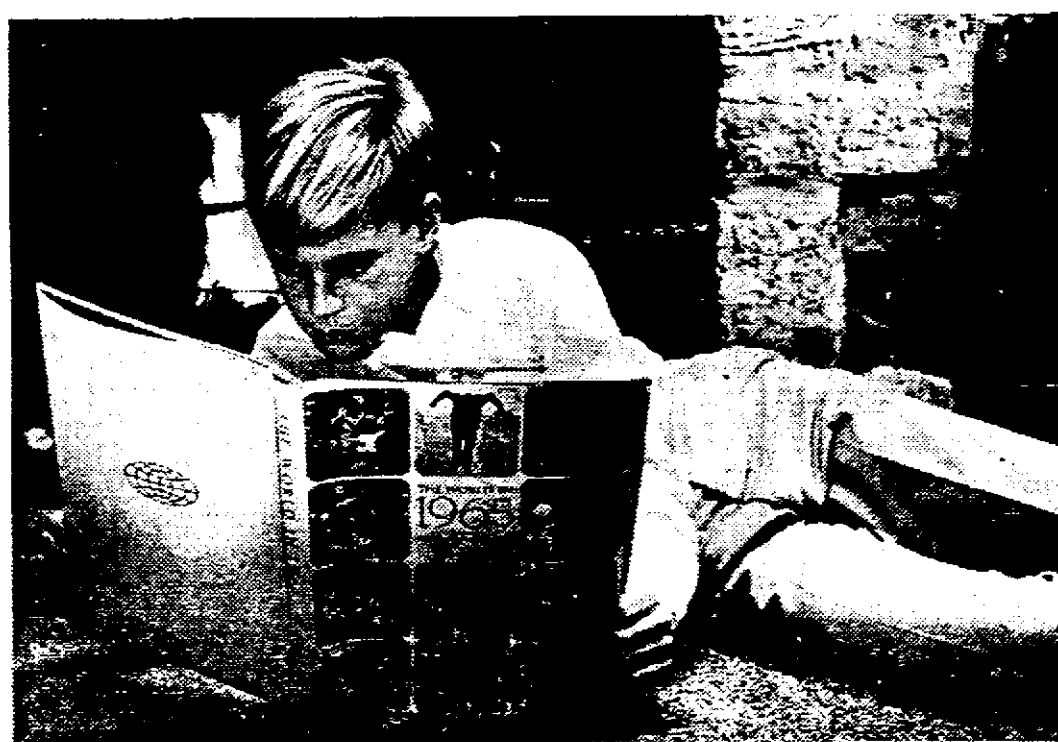

Note to L. C.: Pyelonephritis is a kidney infection, and it can be very dangerous unless treated properly.

To learn of the many factors that can be involved in the treatment of hiatal hernia, which concerns the esophagus, write to Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper for a copy of his booklet, "Hiatal Hernia And Eight Ways To Combat It," enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling. # Movie House Building In Exurbia Lures Adults

BY SYLVIA PORTER

During spring vacations this year, an "in" activity among the teen-agers who triumphantly invaded our house in exurbia was going out to the movies, not in drive-ins, not in Manhattan's expensive theatres but in family-type indoor movie houses in neighborhood shopping centers. They moved in packs from center to center, seeing first-run films simultaneously showing on exhibition in 20 years," says Broadway at far higher prices. Richard A. Smith, president of their raves on what they saw General Cinema Corp., largest are now sending us, the adult shopping center theater chain in "lost audience," back to the country and operator of 103 movies in the largest numbers of the TV era.

Porter

The development of the family-type indoor movie house in regional and community centers is the big trend today in the motion picture industry. The so-called Boxoffice Blockbusters, cold by the upsurge in land prices and the periphery of every large population center and many drive-in theaters are now disappearing as real estate developers acquire the land for other purposes.

Third Development

To illustrate the proportions of the third development, the indoor theater building boom, Smith forecasts that 550 new units will be opened in regional and community centers within the next three years on top of 200 already opened in the past few years. At least another 450 will be built on free-standing highway locations. (An additional 1,200 will be built in smaller communities by small independent operators but Smith isn't counting these as major units.) A conservative estimate of the extra box office revenues coming in from the 1,200 new theatres in prime areas is $140 million a year and of the extra film rental, $50 million a year. In these figures lies the prime solution to the "theatre's most critical problem, the shortage of films for exhibition," Smith believes, for the added money will flow back to the film producers who then will be able to produce a larger number of pictures. A second solution lies in the modern marketing method of "showcasing" — meaning the simultaneous first-run release of films in multiple suburban areas. A theater using this technique can run a good film for six weeks in many localities whereas under the old second-run method, the same theater required a new attraction each week.

Fundamental Forces

Of course, behind the movie comeback are fundamental forces: population growth in the suburbs; upsurge in personal incomes; shortening work week; and lengthening vacations; ever-climbing demand for entertainment; the fact that the fastest population growth is taking place among the most frequent movie-goers, teen-agers, young marrieds, the retired.

The Commerce Department projects movie admissions at above the $1 billion mark in 1966, highest since the $1.2 billion of 1957.

It even could be that among those contributing to this total for the first time in years will be what Smith calls the "snob-bush, selective film-goer" who has either been ignoring the movies or who has gone only to foreign avant-garde pictures. (Copyright, 1966)

Manitowoc Man Fined $25 for Bad Check

Issued Late in '64

Daniel O. Baldt, 41, Manitowoc, Wednesday afternoon was fined $25 and costs after he was found guilty of issuing a worthless check Oct. 12, 1964, in the Town of Center.

Baldt pleaded no contest through his attorney in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The court was told that the $10 check was drawn on an Appleton bank and was cashed at Center Valley Cooperative. There reportedly had been difficulties encountered in serving the warrant, which was issued last summer. Baldt's attorney said arrangements have been made for restitution of the check.

For Municipal Employees Board OKs Parking Lot To West of City Hall

The Appleton Board of Public Works okayed Tuesday the about 32 cars paving of the west side of the city hall property for future use against the proposal but did not as a parking area for municipal employees.

Walter Rasmussen, city planner-traffic engineer, said the area involved was an estimated 90 by 120 feet, fronting on Appleton Street.

There is a municipal metered parking lot south of the city hall building but it does not have enough spaces for those who wish to park in it.

Containing the lack of adequate parking at city hall has been a chronic problem over the years, Ald. John Ayers (12th) recently introduced a resolution in the council calling for the use of the west lawn for additional parking space.

7 to 1 Vote The board of public works voted 7 to 1 in recommending Tuesday that the council authorize blacktopping of the area.

"In addition to city employees, the added parking spaces also can be used by the general public and downtown shoppers after 5 p.m.," Ayers told the board.

He suggested, and the board agreed, that the city parking commission determine whether the additional parking spaces should be metered.

Rasmussen said the property on the west side of city hall would provide about 20 additional parking spaces. The existing

City Atty. David Geenen voted against the proposal but did not say why. Someone inquired about the two spruce trees on the lawn and Rasmussen replied, "If you are going to put parking there they will have to be taken down or run over."

No Likelihood Of Consumer Credit Controls

Reuss Amendment
Gets Little Backing
From the Experts

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND
ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Private let- now, respond to a request from top economists to the Rep. William Widnall of New Jersey three weeks ago to a vote in a couple of weeks. the House Banking Committee dozen eminent private econ-have thrown cold water on a Democratic-sponsored plan to give President Johnson unwanted stand-by control over the cost of consumer credit.

mists ranging from liberal Walter Heller to conservative Raymond J. Saulnier, chairman of the Kennedy-Johnson and Eisenhower Council of Economic Advisers (CEA).

All this will come as a pleasant surprise to President Johnson. The President and his own CEA really do not want stand-by power to impose credit restrictions though they aren't saying so publicly. House Banking Committee Democrats who voted for the amendment have been told the White House won't lift a finger for the amendment when it comes to the floor for a vote in a couple of weeks. It was the steamroller tactics of these Banking Committee Democrats that prompted Widnall, a political and economic moderate, to take private soundings from the economic community.

The amendment giving Mr. Johnson stand-by powers to tighten the cost of consumer credit — on automobiles, household appliances, and other items bought on time — was offered by Democratic Rep. Henry Reuss of Wisconsin to the bill extending the Defense Production Act the day that bill was up for approval. Without a single word of testimony, it went through the committee on an almost straight party-line vote.

Of the first nine responses to Widnall, only one was unequivocally in favor of the amendment. He is Neil Jacoby, Dean of School of Business Administration of the University of California and an Eisenhower CEA member.

Heller, the father of the New Economics of the Kennedy-Johnson administration and major proponent of the 1964 tax cut, was distinctly bearish:

"Whenever we face the problem of cooling down an overheated economy, we face a choice among restraints, none of which are pleasant. In this choice among lesser evils, there are times when the consumer durable sector may be the villain of the piece... even if it does not seem to be a fact at the moment."

On balance, Heller said he thought stand-by controls "make sense," although "one would hope not to have to use them."

Saulnier was totally negative: "I can't see any support for the enactment of consumer credit control authority at this time unless it is on the ground that some as yet undefined emergency may develop that will require action so fast that Congress won't be able to examine the case on its merits. This I do not believe."

Perverse Effects
Another negative came from Paul W. McCracken, who served on Eisenhower's CEA for almost four years, and whose reply to Widnall agreed with the heart of the Republican argument. Credit controls, he said, have "perverse" effects because the rich can buy with cash. "The casualty is the family of more moderate means," he said.

The House debate on the amendment will be important as the first chance Congress has had for all-out talk on a specific measure to deal with inflationary tendencies in the economy.

Talk of a tax increase, predicted by so many uninformed experts for the last several months, is now fading. Top presidential advisers have all but ruled out a tax increase this year, their only caveat being the remote possibility of a Pentagon request for massive new funds to finance the Viet Nam war.

Thus, the great debate over the economy is likely to boil down to nothing more than the credit-control amendment, and on this the verdict of the economists seems to be: Case not proved.

As Henry C. Wallich, a moderate and a 1959-1960 member of the CEA, wrote Widnall: "The present Administration has shown itself to be a very powerful one. There seems to be no need to endow it with further powers that it has not requested."

Hog Prices To Decline, Says USDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department repeated today earlier forecasts of prices by the end of the year. But it no longer talks in terms of a possible depressed hog industry.

Late in 1965, the department said it was possible an upswing in hog production from last year's low level could bring a sharp decline in prices by late 1966 and in 1967 with producer incomes being depressed. But in a report issued today, the department said, "hog prices likely will be considerably below the fourth quarter of 1965 when prices of barrows and gilts at eight midwestern markets averaged $25.25 per 100 pounds. This general supply-price situation likely will extend into 1967."

Hog prices could drop to an average as low as $19 or $20 and still provide producers fair returns.

The report said prices of fed cattle for slaughter likely will be under pressure during the next several months in response to larger supplies.

Neenah Bids for Sixth Straight Mid-Eastern Conference Track Title

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

NEENAH — Contests in the shot put and quarter-mile are expected to highlight the annual Mid-Eastern Conference track and field meet Saturday afternoon on the Neenah high school cinders.

Field events will begin at 12:45 p.m. with trials in the high hurdles slated to start approximately an hour later.

The host Rockets will be bidding for their sixth straight team championship and their 10th in the last 11 years. They nipped Two Rivers by six points last spring. Shawano had a record six successive crowns between 1933 and 1938.

The Kaukauna team is un-

Canadian Tennis Star to Enroll At Wisconsin

MADISON (AP)—The reigning Canadian boys singles tennis champion, Chris Burr of London, Ont., will enroll at Wisconsin in the fall.

Ivan B. Williamson, athletic director, made the announcement Wednesday.

Burr will join a former doubles partner, Don Young at Wisconsin. Young is a Badger freshman.

Wisconsin also announced that John LaLonde of Downers Grove, Ill., a football halfback, will come to Madison next fall.

The halfback was all-conference for his high school team last season.

Terrors Rated Darkhorse at Best

Predict Close Race in FRVC Track Meet

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The most wide-open Fox River Valley Conference track meet in years is billed for Green Bay East's Stadium Friday night.

Thrice-in-a-row champion Appleton High School, which has failed to chalk up a 1966 victory and which will enter the meet without hurdling tist Ed Olson, is rated no better than a darkhorse bet.

The fact that the Terrors are accorded even that much of a chance is a tribute to the FRVC balance this season. No team has appeared all-powerful in preliminary multi-school competition, and the half-dozen or so outstanding individual stars are pretty well distributed among the entries.

FRVC indoor champion Manitowoc and Oshkosh appear to be the teams to beat. Sheboygan North, AHS and Fond du Lac should round out the first division and appear capable of challenging for the title under the right combination of circumstances.

The four Green Bay schools and Sheboygan South, on paper, at least, seem destined for the second division.

Seek Fourth in Row

If the Terrors engineer a major form reversal and repeat as champions, it will mark the first time in AHS history that four straight titles have been recorded. The 1963-5 Terrors share honors with the 1927-9 contenders for the only 3-in-a-row spans.

Green Bay West is the only FRVC school ever to win more than three track titles in

Midnight Deadline To Enter Bowl-O-Rama

Midnight tonight is the deadline for entering the Bowl-O-Rama.

Entry blanks are still available at the 41 Bowl and bowlers who still wish to enter should check at the lanes for openings. The tournament is being extended to Tuesday night to take care of any overflow after Sunday's shifts are filled.

Several spots are still available for Saturday night for any bowlers interested.

Triple Winner

Bondow won with a pitch of 52 feet, 3 inches but has been outthrown by Pierce in most meets this spring. Promer has a top effort of 53 feet, 3 inches.

The other defending champion is Menasha's Dan Hoks, triple winner in the dashes and long jump. He has been handicapped by an injury and hasn't won a race this spring.

Shawano's Ken Peterson, pole vault winner, is out for baseball this spring.

Leading contenders in the discus are Promer, Pierce and New London's Bruce Krueger, all of whom are capable of bettering 140 feet. A throw of 127 feet won last year.

Meantime, cool temperatures, as low as 15 degrees, have turned off activity throughout the state. Conservation Department officials, however, predict that a warm spell could "break everything loose" and produce hot spots all over the map. The hope is that the warm-up will coincide with the opening date.

Legal Saturday

Trout, muskies, northern walleyes and sauger become legal throughout the state starting Saturday. Bass open south of Highway 64 with June 4 the date for the opening in the north.

Reports from around the state show water levels to be excellent and trout streams in perfect shape. Unlike last year, the warm-up will coincide with the opening date.

Cloninger's Pitching Aaron's Bat Powers Braves Past Redlegs

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Manager Bobby Bragan walked out of a clubhouse meeting and proudly proclaimed, "We resolved to start winning."

And the Atlanta Braves did just that.

But then it's easy when you have Hank Aaron on your side.

Aaron hammered two home runs and drove in five runs as Atlanta ended a losing string at five games with an 8-1 victory over Cincinnati Wednesday night.

So Tony Cloninger took care of the pitching. Aaron handled the hitting and Bragan hardly had to do any managing as Atlanta rocked the Reds.

Aaron's two home runs were his 10th and 11th this season and upped his career total to 409, 10th on the all-time list.

Two On In Fifth
He tagged his first of the night over the left field wall with a man on in the first and then reached almost the same spot with two on in the fifth.

Both of Aaron's shots and one by Joe Torre came off Sammy Ellis, who lost for the fifth time in six games.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston downed New York 6-4. San Francisco stretched its winning streak to 10 games with a 6-1 victory over Pittsburgh and Los Angeles blanked Philadelphia 5-0.

Barry Latman pitched 6 1-3 innings of two-hit relief and Rusty Staub and Jim Wynn hammered home runs that lifted Houston past the Mets. Wynn's three-run shot in the fifth put the Astros on top to stay.

Fifth Straight
Gaylord Perry won his fifth straight with a six-hitter and Willie Mays hit his 514th career homer for the Giants.

Mays' two-run homer in the ninth completed San Francisco's scoring after a pair of doubles by Tom Haller helped build the Giants' early lead.

Don Sutton pitched Los Angeles' first shutout of the season and contributed three hits to the Dodger attack against the Phillies.

The rookie right-hander struck out eight, walked only one and drove in the only run he needed in the third inning when he singled after catcher John Roseboro had doubled.

Ron Fairly drove in two runs with a sixth inning single and Sutton contributed his third hit to another two-run Dodger rally in the ninth.

Anglers Watch Weather for Opening Day

all lakes are free of ice but water temperatures remain low because of the unseasonable weather. Reports from the northeast show trout stream water temperatures down around 40 degrees, about eight degrees below what would produce prime fishing.

Reports from the north also indicate that walleyes have spawned in most of the smaller lakes but have not yet started in many of the larger ones. Cool temperatures will also mean that big fish will still be in the shallows.

Dry weather has permitted the conservation department to virtually complete the stocking of this consists of one million rainbow trout and these fingerlings: 2,000,000 walleyes, 651,000 trout, 550,000 largemouth bass, 152,000 muskies and 72,000 northern. In addition, 18 1/2 million walleye fry and 3 1/2 million northern fry were stocked.

New Regulations

Several new fishing regulations went into effect this year and anglers should read regulations carefully. Major changes affect walleyes, sauger, northern and trout. A minimum size limit of 13 inches on walleyes and sauger and 18 inches on northern has been established in Ashland, Barron, Bayfield, Burnett, Chippewa, Douglas, Polk, Price, Rusk, Sawyer, Taylor and Washburn counties; — all in northwestern Wisconsin. The change in trout rules establishes a minimum bag limit of 10 fish in the aggregate in streams. Previously, the rule had been ten of which only five could be rainbows. The old rule continues in effect for trout lakes.

Some other changes make the limit on lake trout and splake two in the aggregate, set the bag on redhorse and suckers at fifty while removing the size limit, and prohibit taking frogs with firearms.

jumpers. Koepke has gone the top of 5 feet, 9 inches.

Long Jumpers

The Rockets' Chuck Wismer, whose 22 feet 2 1/2 inches is fifth best in the state, tops the roster of long jumpers. Antonio and Jansen also have bettered 20 feet.

The conference has a dearth of good pole vaulters with Clintonville's Jim Blum probably the best. He has gone 11 feet.

The lineup for the dashes is uncertain because boys may only compete in two running events and some coaches may choose to shoot for high finishes in the relays.

Top dashmen have been Paul Kiffe, Kaukauna; Mike Wilms, Menasha; Wismer and Tom Brown and Bruce Feurig, New London.

Best hurdle times have been posted by Bob Stichman, Clintonville; Dennis Klapper, Menasha; Dan Koch, Two Rivers, and Feurig, in the lows, and Jansen, Stichman, Koch and Tom Bobber and Tom Hammen, Kimberly; highs. Bruce Rasmussen, Neenah, and Dan Minkebig, Kaukauna, appear the best of the half-milers, while Terry Olson, Neenah, and John Morack, New London, have the best mile times.

Al Savas Second In ABC Singles

Charges Mound
Joseph charged to the pitcher's mound and took a swing at Coates with his fist. Ranew, the Seattle catcher, followed behind Joseph and felled the Vancouver player with a right.

The dugouts emptied and a number of battles broke out. With order restored, play continued for five minutes before Vancouver batter Tom Reynolds bunted the ball toward first base and charged into Coates, knocking him down.

The next batter, Santiago Rosario, moved into the center of the infield swinging a bat. Ranew was clubbed over the head and shoulders.

Dewey Soriano, PCL president, later announced he would hold a hearing of the incident. Coates had allowed but two strikes.

First-place winners in the Fox Valley Sports Car Club's Gymkhana recently were Dean Rohde, in the under 1600 cc. class; Lee Schmalz, in the 1600 cc. to 3000 cc. division; and Jack Bredis, over 3000 cc.

Those who placed second included Dennis Birkholz, Mike Gallagher and Jim Kaufman. While third-place finishers were Tim Scheib, Steve Donahue and Lee Ness.

They Marry Too Young

The symposium on teen-age marriages held recently at the University of California Medical Center has come up with some startling statistics that should really surprise no one. This year 40 per cent of American brides are between 15 and 18 years old and more babies will be born to 19 year old girls this year than to those of any other age. But the really appalling statistic is that at least half of the teen-age marriages will end in divorce within five years.

It has been an American paradox that as more years are needed for productive education and young people are in some ways maintained longer as parental dependents, they have been getting married younger. The average age of marriage for both men and women has continued to slip downward in the last decade. So also has the age of girls bearing children outside of marriage. And although statistics are sometimes difficult to be certain about, the age of unmarried fathers also appears to be getting younger. It is difficult to determine exactly what are the major causes of what only can be regarded as the tragedies of too early marriage, subsequent divorce or years of unhappiness or illegitimacies. Certainly it can be suspected that the relaxed sexual mores of the day have something to do with the problem. Former absolute prohibition against sexual relations outside of marriage — at least as far as respectable girls were concerned — has tended to disappear with the "new morality," the trend toward teen-age drinking which brings about the disappearance of inhibitions, the freedom offered by the automobile and few restrictions on hours or dates from home. The "everybody's doing it" argument is especially convincing to the adolescent, by age a natural conformist at least as far as his own age group is concerned.

But it appears that there is a deeper reason for the problem of the early marriages or sexual relationships. As one panelist at the California conference said, going steady "is the beginning of the end." The youngsters who go steady in general are seeking security, a concrete cure for their own anxieties and insecurities. The girl who always knows she has a date for the school dance or the Saturday night movie is paralleled by the boy who is assured his girl won't turn him down. Sadly enough it seems to be often the parents — especially the mothers — who plant the seeds of this insecurity by their concern over a daughter or son who does not date in high school.

Another factor is the conflict between parents and children during the teen-age years. Such conflict is quite normal. It is always difficult to know how much to relax the reins of control by the parents and most young people seek more freedom — at least on the surface — than they think they will be granted. The solution to the conflict, as far as some adolescents are concerned, is marriage. As another panelist said, "marriage has become a device — and a very effective one — to declare oneself an adult. In a world in which adults have all the gravy, it is difficult to wait when sexual, psychic and status requirements can all be fulfilled by a simple ritual. One can lead a sexual life without guilt, one can relax in the firm knowledge of being chosen, and one can become one's own boss. Why shouldn't it be popular?" One can also become draft exempt.

The failure of these marriages is in part due to the immaturity of the partners. But it is also because the marriage came for one of the worst possible reasons — the effort to escape responsibility. Responsibility for the defense of one's country, responsibility for living up to a high standard of personal conduct, responsibility for finding one's way in a confusing world — all are avoided. It is small wonder that neither the young man or the young woman then is ready to accept the tremendous responsibility of building a home together and raising children.

Heartwarming, Successful Program

There is one little publicized anti-poverty program which has succeeded beyond the fondest dreams of its proponents. It's a tender and moving story of human relationships between the old and the young.

It's the foster grandparent program which was outlined by President Johnson last August as part of an attempt, to ease the lot of some 5 million elderly Americans whose average income is under $1,500 a year. As a starter, 2,000 elderly men and women were to be recruited to work as substitute parents with some 3,000 neglected infants in institutions. They were to work a five-day week, four hours a day, at $1.25 an hour. Each was to be assigned two "grandchildren."

The concept of aged, untrained men and women invading institutions to care for neglected children horrified many professional doctors, nurses and attendants. "We have enough to do with 30 retarded children without taking care of a bunch of old people too," protested the head of one Texas institution.

Now the story of how the program has developed is told in the fine print appendix of a report to a special Senate committee on the aging. Institutions are demanding more and more foster grandparents and the problem has become one of finding enough of them.

Field reports contained these comments: "Our institutional staff is demanding more foster grandparents for their most difficult child cases." "The success of these foster grandparents with the children in these first few weeks is phenomenal." "Most children soon began to identify with their own particular 'grandma' or 'grandpa'."

There were case reports of a boy, Keith, who screamed all day and all night, once for three days in a row. With a grandpa assigned to him he screamed no more, showed improvement in other areas. James was 5 but had to be moved from side to side and was nearly lifeless except for his eyes. After a time he began smiling at grandma and reached for her fingers. She massaged his leg muscles and made a fuss over him. Within two weeks he rolled over on his stomach by himself and the entire ward gathered to see the miracle.

The anti-poverty program has been initiated so rapidly and so massively that it will be years before we can accurately assess the value of the various programs. But the foster grandparent program shows that the whole concept cannot be dismissed as a government boondoggle. We can only hope that other programs work out as well.

The Lunar Sovereignty Treaty

President Johnson has proposed that world leaders sign a treaty which would outlaw military activity on the moon and deny lunar sovereignty for any one nation.

This is a fine idea, a worthwhile goal and would be a great achievement.

But it is a lot like a wife who asks her husband to return from a fishing expedition in time for supper.

That, too, is a fine idea, a worthwhile goal and would be a great achievement.

But its chances of success are slim.

DDT Not Being Used by Fogger, Deputy Health Officer Explains

Editor, Post-Crescent:
Dear 'Concerned':

This letter is in response to your article "Pesticide Season Nearing. Warns of Dangerous Uses" which appeared in the May 4 edition of the Post-Crescent.

By the tone of the article it seems to me that you may be the same person who visited me in my office in 1965. If you are, I explained to you what the spraying program consists of here in the City of Appleton. At that time, you seemed to be satisfied with the answers.

I would like to state our position again for you and the residents of Appleton. We do not use DDT in our spraying program for mosquitoes. We have not used DDT in the past two years. In the summer of 1964, the Department switched to malathion which is as effective as DDT but does not have as long lasting residual.

The residual effect is the condition that can make the insecticide dangerous in a spraying program. This year again, the City will use malathion with a concentration of 2 per cent. The recommended range by Public Health Service is 2.5 per cent. The formulation for the insecticide was approved by the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Pesticide Control Section.

It is true that this is only one method of control and may not be the best. The best method of control is to eliminate all breeding places. This means empty bird baths frequently, do not allow water to become stagnant in containers around one's yard and fill in all water holes, such as those that are created in new areas of the city because of construction of new homes.

Children are not permitted to follow the fogger and run in the thickest fog for blocks at a time. Many times there is a police vehicle following the fogger so that children do not run in the fog. If parents would exercise their responsibility the children would not run behind the fogger.

I don't feel that the technique of spraying as conducted by the Health and Sanitation Departments is barbaric or dangerous. It is a safe program. We have not had any "proved" cases of illness due to our spraying program.

Scots Learn German At Night School to Enhance Export Drive

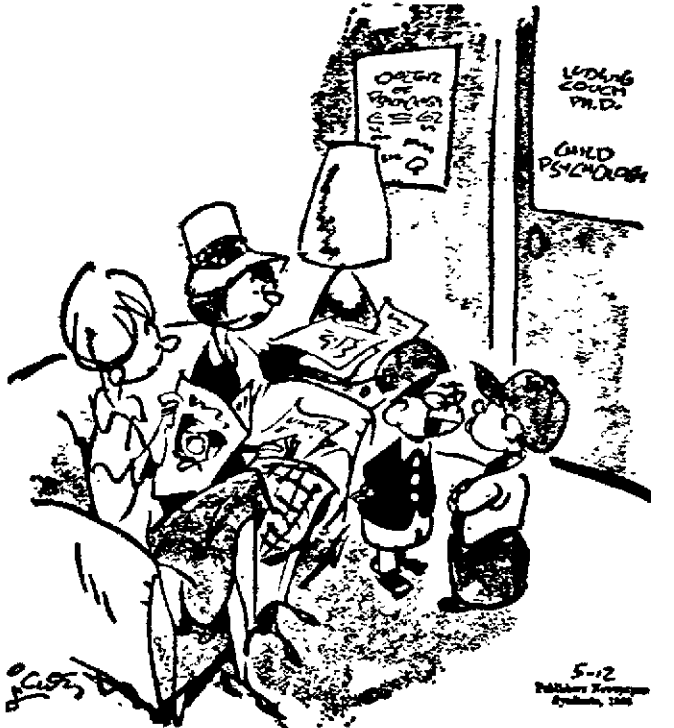

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — Top executives of an enterprising Scottish shipyard are going to night school to learn German to help them in their export drive.

John Wright, managing director of Hall, Russell, an Aberdeen shipyard, has by his globe-trotting efforts brought his firm some two million pounds ($3.6 million, worth of export orders from West Germany alone.

But language difficulties were making life all the harder, he told reporters. Now Wright and 18 of his top executives go to school twice a week to pick up conversational German.

Policemen and Dogs Curb Moonlight Walk Near Nation's Capitol

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
WASHINGTON — Notes for the diary of a transient in the national capital:

Nothing is quite as startling here for the occasional visitor from such a state as Wisconsin as the sight of pairs of husky policemen, leading office to be a more important one than a senatorship.

Sometimes home-state political gossip is circulated in Washington before it is known in the local jurisdiction. Thus the story is now going around Wisconsin circles in Washington the Alfred J. Thelen, perhaps the best known state capital lobbyist of his time, is preparing to retire later this year and has already settled on the man he will recommend to succeed him.

The Wisconsin County Boards Association, whose political eyes and ears he has provided in Madison for 30 years, presumably may be recognized as a result of local county board changes occasioned by the new county reapportionment law.

Wyngaard

husky police dogs between them, as they patrol the park surrounding the Capitol on foot at night.

The scene was so suggestive, indeed, that the lady of my house declined to take any more strolls in the moonlight after she reflected on the meaning of such evidence of law-enforcement difficulties in the center of the city. The declination was firm, and in spite of the admission that the brilliantly illuminated Capitol remains one of the most majestic sights in America.

Rep. Alvin O'Konski of the Wisconsin 10th District is usually called the "dean" of the Wisconsin congressional delegation, in this political capital which dotes on such formalities. O'Konski enjoys the description, moreover, and is proud of the fact that he is becoming one of the senior members of the House of Representatives after nearly 24 years.

Members of the Congress are carefully deferential in their relations with each other, and especially in the presence of subordinates or constituents. They are elaborately courteous in titular identification, for example. Thus Rep. Vernon W. Thompson of Wisconsin is always called "governor," in deference to his former rank in the Wisconsin state government. Some U.S. senators who were former governors of their states are also addressed as "governor." Sen. Nelson of Wisconsin says he has noted that southerners are especially given to the use of the gubernatorial title, supposing the state executive Sargent Shriver, brother-in-law of the Kennedys, believes in using the diminutive in the use of his own name, as do his distinguished relatives. His letters to congressmen are signed "Sarge," including one that went a few days ago to a Wisconsin representative which carefully recited the numbers of anti-poverty projects in Wisconsin he has approved thus far as chief of that huge new enterprise of the Johnson administration.

Among the valued emoluments of today's congressional seat is a generous government allowance for communications, including telephone and telegraph. Especially in a campaign year, congressmen like to keep in touch with their districts. And it appears that some of their favorite local friends are occasionally instructed to return calls, charges collect.

Strictly Personal

Nothing Is Free; Even Television Programs

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS
Thoughts at Large:

Being entertained by others isn't "free," even when we don't pay for it, as on television — for the price we pay in being perpetually entertained by professionals is the atrophy of our own native ability to entertain ourselves, recall that these lovely words are just adaptations of the commonplace names of botanists—such as Fuchs, Begon, Camilli, Magnol, and Poinsett.

A fanatical man who believes the world is flat has more impressive arguments than a sensible man who knows it is spherical; and the reason that fanaticism so often triumphs over sense is that those who hold a position passionately are the only ones who take the trouble to arm themselves with persuasive arguments, however wrong they may be.

Why is it generally the same women who are always busy "tidying the house" who rarely invite anyone over to enjoy it?

"Nobody's perfect" is a useful maxim to apply to others, in softening our harsh judgments of their conduct; but a bad maxim to apply to oneself, where it only serves as an excuse for moral laxity. (I once heard of a judge who asked a rapist if he had anything to say on his behalf before sentence was passed; the rapist shrugged and replied, "Nobody's perfect.")

It is not what men do at their worst that makes tragedy, but what men do at their best, with good intentions, or what men find they must do in spite of their intentions, that creates the most misfortune in the world.

The trouble with the escalation in the arms race is that nations cannot foresee the ultimate consequences until it is too late—like the man who jumped off the roof of a 50-story building, and as he passed the 10th floor, called to someone looking out the window, "Everything's still OK!"

Most flower names seem so appropriately "floral" that it always comes as a surprise to

It's curious that French accent in English is considered "charming," while an Italian accent in English is considered "comical"—especially since Italian is by far the more beautiful language of the two.

The best definition of a "materialist" I have heard is that he reverses the objects of loving and of using: we are meant to love persons and to use things, but the materialist uses persons and loves things.

One of the finest of psychological paradoxes was expressed by Ira Wallace, when he said: "Too strong an instinct for survival can kill a man."

Four Work at One Man's Job In Overpopulated Red China

Propaganda for Children Alarms British Woman Touring Mainland

EDITOR'S NOTE — Dorothy Henry, 46, secretary of the 8,000-member Institution of British Engineers, led a party of 18 known as educational subjects. British businessmen and engineers on a 12-day visit to Communist China last month. They went at the invitation of the Chinese Society of Civil Engineers and were shown building and industrial development in Peking, Shanghai and other Chinese cities. In the following article, written for The Associated Press, she describes the visit, her first to China.

By DOROTHY HENRY
PEKING (AP) — In Communist China today four men do one man's job.

This is one of the things that struck me hard about the world's most populous nation. The manpower wastage is fantastic, but it's a question of keeping all those millions working.

Everyone works in China. All the women have jobs.

Most families have a convenient grandmother who stays home to look after the small children. If there is no grandmother the children are put in a weekly children's nursery.

From outside, the factories look efficient and modern, but inside there seem to be four operators for every machine. You are struck by the fact that there are no multipurpose machines. There is no automation.

It's the same in civil engineering.

We saw a canal being built. There seemed to be 20,000 or 30,000 people moving earth in baskets.

Great Achievements

Yet there have been, of course, tremendous achievements.

The most alarming thing to me about China is the propaganda used on young children.

Dorothy Henry

financial aid and technicians. The withdrawal has hit them hard.

At Wuhan, southwest of Shanghai, I visited a steel plant. They were building a big extension to the plant, and I saw Soviet rolling mills waiting to be installed.

These obviously had been standing there for a considerable time. If the Soviets hadn't withdrawn I'm sure that extension would have been finished and the plant working at full capacity.

Mug Fighters

Our visit began at Shanghai airport. We could see between one and two dozen brown-colored MIG fighters on the military part of the airport.

We visited a workers' settlement, which we would call a slum clearance scheme.

People are being moved from old dilapidated homes into modern blocks of flats. I visited several of these flats in Shanghai. They seem to be about the same size, consisting of two or three rooms, kitchen and lavatory. Sometimes a kitchen is shared with another family. The rooms are about 12 x 10 feet and rents are cheap.

By Western standards the flats would be suitable for a married couple or possibly a couple with one child. But in China the whole family — grandparents, married children and their children — live under one roof. So the average for each flat is about five or six people — overcrowded by our standards.

Everybody who can works. The average wage rate for a worker at, say a machine tool factory, is between $25 and $28 per month. The boss doesn't get much more. A chief engineer, for instance, might earn $61 per month. For an equivalent job in the West he would expect $1,000 a month. There's not much incentive in China for a worker to become a boss.

There are very few cars on the streets in China. Party officials can be seen going to their offices in cars, quite often American ones. I always used to point these out to our interpreters and say with glee: "That's a Chevrolet. I thought you wouldn't have Americans here." They laughed.

There are a few taxis in the big cities.

There are hardly any consumer goods in the shops. Clothes the few we saw were all engaged in traffic duties.

Those blue tunic jackets that everyone wears, for instance, was the longest, straightest, widest street I've ever seen — as a woman I was a bit put off by all those blue tunics and trousers, worn by both men and women. The legs of the women's new buildings the Chinese capital struck me as a drab place, commotion. I'm told that some Chinese women wear skirts. But I never saw any.

Chinese Workmen Wearing safety helmets made of bamboo stand at the site of building construction in Shanghai. A recent trip to the mainland by an English engineering expert revealed that manpower is wasted. (AP Wire-photo)

One Chinese engineer boasted to me: "We have equality of the sexes here."

I told him: "I don't agree. I think the women are more equal. They look after the home, then go and do the same job as the men in the factory. And they don't even get paid more."

One thing that struck me in Peking was the railway station. Very modern. It even had a spot where you could stand and make train inquiries over a closed television circuit. It had a good dining room and large, clean waiting rooms.

From Peking we went to the industry city of Wuhan. We arrived on Easter Sunday and told our interpreters that we would like to go to church. They took us to a Buddhist temple. We said this was very nice but we would like to go to a Christian church.

The interpreters put their heads together. Later they took us to a building which looked as if it might have been a mission church at one time. In the vestry was a big picture of Mao Tse-tung. Above the altar was a red flag.

A little man in blue tunic and trousers came forward. He said he was the minister. One of our party could play the organ. Another was a lay preacher. We had our Easter service.

American Toll for Week Tops That of Vietnamese Troops

U. S. Navy Planes Hit Missile Site Near North Vietnamese Port

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — More Americans were killed in combat last week than troops of the South Vietnamese government, allied military spokesmen announced today.

It was the second time that American combat dead exceeded the Vietnamese in the five

Nike Hercules Superior to Russian SAM

Army Examines U. S. Missiles After Red Use in War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has taken another look at its Nike Hercules air defense missiles in the light of the poor performance of Russian-built SAM anti-aircraft missiles in North Viet Nam.

Its conclusion: The U.S. missiles do not have the same weaknesses and no major adjustments are needed in Nike Hercules defenses.

Sources said today Army air defense commanders were asked to re-examine their doctrine and capabilities months ago after the Russian-built SAMs appeared in North Viet Nam.

Details of the study are secret, but it was understood that the Nike Hercules radar — vital to the killing ability of the missile — was rated superior to the Soviet SAM radar equipment and less subject to invasion.

The re-examination took account of special tactics developed by U.S. Air Force, Navy and Marine fliers in dealing with the SAMs in their forays into North Viet Nam.

"We think our batteries would score much higher kills than the North Vietnamese," said one source.

The SAMs, believed to be manned by North Vietnamese crews, have knocked down fewer than 20 of the 235 U.S. warplanes lost above the 17th parallel.

Some U.S. military men believe the SAMs would do better if they were handled by Russian firing crews. Russians have been serving as advisers and trainers, according to information available here.

South Africans Protest Curbs on Student Official

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Angry University students today planned country-wide demonstrations protesting drastic restrictions put on the president of the student organization sponsoring Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's visit next month.

Watched by security police, gowned students at Johannesburg's Witwatersrand University stopped cars passing the university and handed out pamphlets saying, "We will not give up our responsibilities in the face of intimidation."

Condemnation of the government's action poured in from students' representatives in Johannesburg, Cape Town, Durban and Grahamstown. But a student organization which supports the government and its racial policies, the Afrikaanse Student Bond, expressed its approval.

The white supremacist government Wednesday prohibited Jan Robertson, president of the multiracial National Union of South African Students (NUSAS), from taking part in any NUSAS activities.

WCTU Blues: Mrs. Tooze Dumps Booze

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — One hundred dollars worth of beer and whisky went down the drain Wednesday as Mrs. Fred J. Tooze, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, helped an Evanston detective celebrate his birthday.

Fourteen bottles of whisky and 217 cans of beer seized by Evanston police during raids from April 21 to May 10 were poured down the drain of a shower stall in the locker room of the Evanston police station.

Evanston is dry and the law requires that liquor seized by police be disposed of.

It was detective Zeltee Edwards' birthday. Picking up the first can of beer, patrolman Donald C. Mountain, property officer for the Evanston Police Department, handed it to Edwards saying: "Here's a beer for your birthday."

Edwards opened the can, muttered, "What a waste," and poured the beer down the drain.

Mrs. Tooze, who had been invited to attend the ceremony as a public witness, sang: "Happy Birthday to You."

Repatriated by Airlift

Life in Cuba Terrible, American Woman Says

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The first American of Anglo-Saxon descent to be repatriated from Cuba by refugee airlift, Doris Roper Martin, says, "I feel like a refugee."

She arrived with her Cuban-born family and said she wanted to "start over again."

She had not seen her country in 17 years.

"I didn't know whether to laugh or cry when the plane landed," said Mrs. Martin, one of the last 600 U.S. citizens who remained in Cuba. "So I did some of both. Then I thanked God for being here."

Chilidren Weep

Her three children, U.S. citizens but unable to speak much English, wept as they touched American soil.

"Life in Cuba is terrible, terrible," Mrs. Martin said. "Margarita went to a Catholic school and since that closed three years ago because they sent the nuns out of the country, she hasn't attended school. I took Andres out of school last year because they were trying to make a Communist out of him."

Margarita is 18, Andres 15, Antonio 11.

"The children could have no milk at all," Mrs. Martin said. "Only infants get milk in Cuba."

She added: "Our entire family got one and one-fourth pounds of meat a week. We got three ounces of coffee a week per person. A pair of shoes had to last two years."

Speaking half Spanish, half English, Mrs. Martin continued: "We are going to start all over again in the United States. All our belongings were confiscated by Castro."

Her husband, Dr. Andres Martin, arrived Wednesday, a day after she and the children did. He had been held back since he is a physician, and exodus of doctors from Cuba is restricted.

Oleo Ban Repeal Gets Preliminary Approval

Final Test Of Measure Next Week

MADISON (AP) — A bill repealing the nation's last state ban on colored oleomargarine has won preliminary approval in the Wisconsin Assembly but must wait until next week for its final test.

A 57-41 vote Wednesday put beyond the amendable stage a much-discussed proposal that would permit the sale of colored oleo but tax it seven cents a pound. The two-thirds vote needed to move the measure to immediate passage was not in the House.

The preliminary ballot came after more than a week of interspersed but prolonged debate during which more than 20 amendments were considered.

Promised Changes

A dozen proposed changes kept the Assembly busy two and a half hours Wednesday.

At one point, Assemblyman Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, pleaded with supporters to refrain from answering long-winded critics.

"We are facing here today a delaying tactic that will prevent the bill from ever leaving this house," he said.

On an 85-12 vote, the Assembly adopted an amendment earmarking half of the revenue collected from the tax for a dairy plant security fund and half for dairy industry promotion and research.

The security fund would guarantee payment to farmers for milk delivered to dairy plants that fail.

Other Amendments

Only two other amendments were adopted. One would allow the manufacture of oleo with any American-produced vegetable oil. The other would require the State Department of Agriculture to establish grading standards for oleomargarine similar to those used for butter.

The Assembly later approved by voice vote a bill requiring

Peking Mayor Latest Topic of Guessing Game

TOKYO (AP) — The absence of Peking Mayor Peng Chen, one of Red China's most powerful men, from ceremonies honoring visiting Albanian and Romanian delegations added to speculation today that he may be in disgrace.

Peng, 67, ranks No. 6 in the Communist party hierarchy and is a member of its ruling politburo. He was absent from banquets given for each visiting delegation and did not go to Peking airport Wednesday to see the Albanians off or to greet the Romanians.

Tokyo students of Chinese affairs acknowledge that in the light of Communist Chairman Mao Tse-tung's comings and goings the "who's missing and why?" guessing game is somewhat hazardous. But diplomats, newsmen and scholars are wondering whether Peng has been caught up in the current party purge.

Would be Scholar-Teacher

Bishop Pike Wants to Quit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Rt. Rev. James A. Pike, Protestant Episcopal bishop of the Diocese of California and a storm center of religious controversy, is considering a contemplative life and the role of scholar-teacher. He wants to resign as head of the diocese.

Bishop Pike, 53, also would like to become a worker-bishop, a man who is a bishop but who earns his income outside the church.

Pike, in a statement Wednesday, said if the church's House of Bishops approves his resignation proposal, he will become a member of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions at Santa Barbara, Calif.

Administrative Pressure

Temperatures Moderating In Northeast

Illinois Soaked; Storms Sweep Across Kansas, Missouri

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Temperatures moderated in most of the northeast quarter of the nation today after several days of freezing weather which appears to have caused millions of dollars damage to fruit and vegetable crops.

Lowest readings were in the 20s in northern New England but the mercury was mostly in the 30s and 40s in areas hit by the recent spells of unseasonably cold weather.

More rain fell across wide areas from the central Rockies into the nation's midsection. Snow fell in mountain areas. The rain belt appeared heading eastward and southward.

Kansas, Missouri

Stormy weather raked areas in eastern Kansas and northwestern Missouri Wednesday, injuring one person and causing property damage. A tornado struck at Pittsburg, a city of 18,700 in southeastern Kansas, and blew the roof off part of a building in which several hundred persons sought shelter. Several homes were damaged.

Illinois Rains

Drenching rains hit northeastern Illinois, including Chicago and suburban areas. More than three inches doused Chicago since Wednesday morning compared to the normal monthly total of 3.75 inches for May. Light snow fell in some areas.

Gore Hopes Lodge Supports Elections

Wants Ambassador to Return With Administration Instructions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Albert Gore said today he hopes Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge will return to Saigon with explicit White House instructions to support free elections in South Viet Nam.

The Tennessee Democrat gets a chance to express that hope to Lodge when the American diplomat testifies at a mid-afternoon closed session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Lodge, back from the war zone for consultations, conferred Tuesday night with President Johnson and the National Security Council. Secrecy has shrouded the substance of Lodge's discussions.

Another Item

Another item before the committee today: A proposal to give it a share in supervision of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., is pressing that bid, seeking seats for three foreign relations committeemen on the Senate panel which oversees the secret intelligence agency.

It is now composed of senators from the armed services and appropriations committee. Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the CIA panel, opposes the McCarthy plan.

Rockford Murder Trial Rescheduled in Sycamore Circuit Court

SYCAMORE, Ill. (AP) — After two changes in location, the trial of Russell Charles Dewey 25, on a charge of murdering an 11-year-old Rockford girl, has been set for Sept. 19 in Circuit Court in Sycamore.

Judge Cassius Poust, who set the date, announced he would hold a hearing May 31 to determine whether Dewey is competent to stand trial on a charge of killing Susan Brady in Rockford Dec. 20.

At the request of Dewey's lawyer the trial was switched from Rockford to Freeport and then to Sycamore. The lawyer contended public opinion had been so enflamed by publicity that it would be impossible to find an impartial jury.

Lunar Probe Vehicle

Surveyor Makes First Soft Landing in Test

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — The Surveyor vehicle for unmanned, soft moon landings has made its first descent without the aid of parachutes, clearing the way for its first lunar mission May 30.

The spacecraft landed successfully Wednesday at Holloman Air Force Base near Alamogordo after a 36-second descent which began with Surveyor's release from a balloon at an altitude of almost 1,000 feet.

Tests had been under way at Holloman for more than a year, but previously parachutes had been used to assist Surveyor in part of the descent.

Lunar Surface

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) will not commit men to moon journeys until more is learned about the lunar surface. Surveyor would send back this data.

History's first soft landing on the moon was made Feb. 3 by Russia's Luna 9. NASA officials have conceded that Luna 9 gave the road to the moon race but not necessarily the overall edge.

Because of the complexity of the mission, seven identical Surveyors are being built in hopes that at least one will succeed before the end of 1967.

The Surveyor program had an original 1963 target date for a lunar landing but ran into troubles. The program was called by a congressional committee "one of the least orderly and most poorly executed of NASA projects."

The Holloman test director for Surveyor, G. P. Steffen of Hughes Aircraft Co., said that Wednesday was the first time a complete descent under Surveyor's own power had been attempted.

Jury Rules for Warden In $10,000 Damage Suit

Rural Hortonville Man Claimed Assault, Battery After Arrest on Hunting Charges

A 12-member jury Wednesday afternoon ruled for a Wisconsin Conservation Department warden in connection with an assault and battery suit brought against him by a rural Hortonville man.

The suit, in which $10,000 damages were sought, was brought by Arland Relien, route 2, Hortonville, against Donald Knocke, a game warden, who lives at 128 S. Seventh Avenue, Winneconne.

The case, which featured two days of testimony, was heard in Outagamie County Court Branch 3, before Judge Raymond P. Dohr. Seven men and five women formed the jury which was out an hour and 15 minutes before returning its unanimous verdict late Wednesday.

Knocke was represented by William Eich, as assistant attorney general for the state, and Relien was represented by Appleton attorney Allan Cam.

Claimed Injury

Relien, a farmer, contended that assault and battery was committed on him by Knocke on Nov. 28, 1964 in the Town of Dale. He alleged the warden dragged him on the highway, using force and violence, and then, using excessive force, pushed him into a vehicle.

The Hortonville man contended that his left arm and hand received permanent injuries as a result of the incident.

Relien was convicted by a 12-member county court jury on three game charges brought the day he said he was assaulted and battered by the warden.

Law Violations

Al Vander Bloemen, a local warden, arrested Relien for hunting within 200 feet of a highway centerline, shooting from an automobile, shooting at

Village Board Denies Request By Owners for More Time

HILBERT — The village board Tuesday night denied a 30-day extension on the removal of Schaffer, along Greve Court and a condemned house on N. Fourth Street, so new homes could be Winfield Aggen, Chilton, and built. The board said no action could be taken until a plat, property which was condemned drawn by an engineer, is three years ago for its unsafe, presented.

Utility Extensions Board members are not sure what utility extensions are possible in the area. It is possible that the sewage line could connect with Fifth Street, or continue east of Greve Court across the railroad track.

He opposed an extension. He to a point, then north to the disposal plant. Action will be delayed until the land is platted.

Capacity of the present sewage facilities has been estimated by experts as capable of a population increase of 500 to 700 persons.

Speed limit signs and reflectors warning of the narrow bridge on the east village limits will be replaced.

Special Meeting A special meeting was scheduled 7 p.m. May 21 to study the new street lighting plan submitted recently by the Wisconsin Power Co. Action probably will not be taken until the next regular meeting. Board members will visit other communities May 18 with lighting system similar to those proposed. #### Foil Deliberate Attempt

CNW Freight Train Cars Accidentally Derailed

Two cars of a 149-unit Chicago and North Western freight train were accidentally derailed a quarter mile east of Wittenberg about 10:15 p.m. Tuesday, two hours after a derailment attempt was discovered near Bear Creek.

Reports indicate that the train, No. 281 running between North Fond du Lac and Eland, had stopped in Bear Creek to drop off a car. When the train was about a mile out of the village, the engineer reportedly discovered two railroad ties spiked down across the tracks.

The train later continued on toward Eland, according to reports, and railroad officials said the two cars, apparently unloaded, were accidentally derailed about 10:15 p.m. when a "draw bar dropped" between two units.

The two cars were "rerailled" by about 2 a.m. and the train was able to continue, a Chicago and North Western spokesman said. Damage reportedly was confined to a small area of track and to the two cars, which he said were able to be used following the accident.

The train reportedly was pulling 120 empty and 29 loaded cars.

Population Crisis Series

WSU-O Panel Offers Views Of Planned Parenthood Issue

BY ALLAN EKVALL Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — Birth control, planned parenthood or family limitation — whichever term one prefers — were viewed from different angles here Tuesday night by a Catholic priest, an obstetrician and gynecologist, a political science professor and a geography professor.

Topic of the second in a series of three talks on "The Population Crisis," held at Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh's Reeve Union, was "Science, Religion and the Population Crisis." Panelists were Dr. Donald Bruyere, WSU-O associate professor of geography, Dr. Jay Larkey, M.D., Milwaukee obstetrician and chairman of the medical advisory committee of Planned Parenthood Association, the Rev. Orville Janssen, editor of the Green Bay Register, and Dr. Ravi Kapil, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee political science assistant professor and Peace Corps director designate for Somalia.

Third in the series will be at 8 p.m. Thursday and will feature Rep. Paul H. Todd of Michigan and Leighton Van Nort, chief of the United Nations Economic Affairs section of the Department of State at Washington.

Methods Discussed Discussion centered on such birth control methods as the "pill," the "morning after pill," and various inter-uterine devices.

Father Janssen said there has been some re-thinking of the family limitation problems in the Catholic church and that the final answer is not yet available. He said there are various factors that brought this about.

He cited an acute awareness of the problems of the population explosion and population crisis as one factor. A second factor is the openness within the church to the existence of these problems and the clerical members becoming deeply aware of personal problems of people. The third is a change in the growth of moral concepts because of non-moral factors.

He said Catholic doctrine regarding family limitation methods was not based on scripture although over the

The hiring of the part-time help will enable Mr. Erickson, band instructor, to visit the outlying schools in the district during the morning instead of in the evening as he has been doing. William Mathwig, high school principal, said applications have been received to fill vacated teaching posts. However, only one position has been filled so far. Carol Sue Fischer, a Stevens Point graduate, will replace Mrs. Marilyn Hoffland as instructor of business education. All head coaching positions are open and interviews are being conducted in an effort to fill the positions.

Camp Mikquano At Nelsonville Has New Owner

AMHERST — Camp Mikquano, a boys camp at Nelsonville, has been sold to George Sherman and Robert Schmatz, members of the University of Michigan staff at Battle Creek. Welton Alm, who built the camp in 1945, will devote his time to his pheasant farm adjacent to the camp, which he started four years later.

The camp on Lake Elaine, has facilities for about 60 boys six to 15, years-of-age and 12 to 15 counselors.

During the past 19 years, campers largely came from the Chicago area. There is a large building used for a mess hall and recreation, with 12 cottages, outdoor screened pavilion, a covered barbecue pit, tennis court, basketball court, swimming and boating facilities, rifle ranges and riding horses.

The camp, located west of Nelsonville, is a member of the National Rifle Association and the American Camping Association.

Suggested changes will be discussed before adoption of a permanent ordinance.

At a meeting of Little Wolf residents in March, Joe Walker, Waupaca County agricultural agent, explained advantages and disadvantages of a zoning ordinance. He described zoning as "establishing rules of good housekeeping." He said zoning is a protective measure, not a restriction. It will change, nothing that now exists but will help in controlling future development.

The plan must be flexible so changes are possible, Walker said. At the same time, it must be rigid enough to benefit all concerned in the long run. It must be a plan that promotes home ownership and orderly community growth. The planning must be done by local persons who understand local problems, he said.

years some had drawn a conclusion that this was the case, based on the incident of Onan in the Book of Genesis.

Natural Law
The Catholic position, the priest said, is based on what Catholics call natural law and that man by the use of reason can discover God's purpose in the universe.

Father Janssen said the rhythm method approved by the Catholic church seems to fit within the natural law idea and the church is accepting the premise of human decision to limit families. Pope Pius XII had approved the Catholic control of family size.

Father Janssen further said the Catholic church has said the "pill" can be used in the regulation of the menstrual cycle. But as for the other birth control devices, it wants to know how these devices work before it provides an answer.

One question the church wants answered is whether the contraceptive is an abortive act. The church is concerned with the soul of man.

Not a Panacea
Dr. Larkey commented that the "pill" is not a panacea because of motivation and side effects and stressed that any contraceptive must be effective, safe, simple to use and not dependent on a high intelligence.

He told of some of the research work done in Puerto Rico among 11,000 women, who had been given the birth control pill which must be taken daily during most of the menstrual cycle and of the newer "morning after pill" which renders the uterus lining unresponsive to receive the fertilized ovum.

Dr. Kapi's topic was "Religious Attitudes in Asia and Africa Toward Family Planning" and he pointed out that those religions do not have an attitude. Hinduism and Buddhism are not churches and there are no specific pronouncements, books, manifestos on this matter, he said.

These are problems which did not exist when these religions were developed and thus they have no attitudes, Dr. Kavi, who was born in India and who has worked in Africa, remarked.

Not religion but the day-to-day circumstances dictate the attitude in fertility control and family planning. The peasantry accept that which will happen—fatalism—as being the will of God and that man does not control his own life and environment.

CAP Wants Space At Outagamie Port

Board Committee Studies Request For Headquarter, Hangar Unit

The Fox Cities Composite Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol (CAP) is seeking space to construct a combination headquarters, training and hanger building at the Outagamie County Airport.

The request was made at a meeting of the Outagamie County Board's airport committee by officials of the local CAP squadron and details of the proposal were outlined in a letter to the committee.

A sub-committee of the airport unit has been named to study the proposal and report at the next meeting. Members are John Dietz, Stanley Gillespie, Max Sagunsky, A. W. Ponath and Alvin Woehler.

Steel Building
In the letter, signed by Major Erwin Roberts of Appleton, commander of the local CAP squadron, permission was asked to construct a 40 by 120 foot steel building that "would match in quality, construction and appearance the present terminal building" at the new airport.

In addition to space for the building, the CAP unit would need "minimal access" to an apron or tie-down area and would ask that the county provide a "hookup" for water and sewage.

Roberts, in his letter, states that "the present operation of the squadron now uses class-room facilities at Wilson Junior High School in Appleton and has offices in homes of some squadron leaders."

Centrally Located
"With centrally located headquarters, the efforts of CAP can be made immediately available in time of an emergency," Roberts stated.

He said that the activities of the patrol center about flying Squadron aircraft have been made available to local authorities at times.

"Since the airport is the focal point of activity and our training is directly related to aviation, it is important that we bring personnel in close contact with actual aspects of flying," Roberts told the committee.

Shawano Aids CAP

The letter said that Shawano and Milwaukee counties have aided the CAP in establishing facilities in those areas. He said Milwaukee County financed, built and maintained a $250,000 building for the CAP at Timmerman Field and also provided facilities at Mitchell Field.

Coils in ordinary mattresses are wired together. Push one down and all the nearby coils are pulled down, too. Your spine sags into a valley. Your back can ache the next day. Two sleepers roll together, disturbing each other's sleep.

Beautyrest coils are not wired together. They're separate and independent. Push one down and it doesn't affect those nearby. Each coil supports its own section of the body. No sag. No valley. No rolling together. Only firm, body-fitting comfort.
